'Go-It-Alone' Policy Threatens Saigon Split

PARIS (UPI)—South Vietnam spurned and the Viet Cong endorsed today an American threat to go it alone with the Communists in Vietnam War talks which Saigon is boycotting.

In Saigon, South Vietnamese Information Minister Ton That Thien told newsmen of the threat by U.S. Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford: "They can go ahead and talk but their conclusions certainly will be of no validity at all."

In Paris, Viet Cong spokesman Duong Dinh Thao told newsmen: "If Saigon does not send representatives to Paris, the Front (Viet Cong), North Vietnam and the United States must meet immediately to find a political solution to the Vietnamese problem."

In Washington, Clifford suggested Tuesday that if South Vietnam continued its boycott the United States should meet the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese here but discuss only military deescalation. He said political settlements would have to await Saigon's attendance in the talks.

In Saigon, South Vietnamese Information Minister Ton That Thien told newsmen, "They can go ahead and talk but their conclusions certainly will be of no validity at all."

Thien later told UPI correspondent Daniel Southerland, "They can talk on anything that concerns only Hanoi and the United States but any agreement having to do with the fate of South Vietnam will not be binding on us." U.S. Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford had suggested Tuesday in Washington that America go it alone in Paris if Saigon continued to refuse to come to the bargaining table.

Southerland reported the Clifford-Thien exchange was raising talk in Saigon of a critical split between the United States and South Vietnam.

In Saigon, U.S. military spokesmen today said Communist artillery shelled allied positions Tuesday from points either in or just below the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) dividing North and South Vietnam. The spokesmen, who earlier had said the Red shells came from inside the DMZ, later said they trying to pinpoint the exact Communist firing positions. A Communist artillery attack Saturday from inside the DMZ appeared to violate conditions for holding the Paris talks.

In Hanoi, North Vietnam today vowed anew to carry out its Communist plan for unification with South Vietnam.

In Paris, the Vietnam talks today entered their seventh month with American diplomats meeting North Vietnamese delegates in search of a formula that would bring Saigon to the conference table and get expanded settlement negotiations underway.

The United States and North Vietnamese opened talks here May 13, aiming to cool down the war enough to allow full negotiations. President Johnson Oct. 31 announced a Nov. 1 halt to U.S. bombing of North Vietnam to open the way for bringing South Vietnam and the Viet Cong guerrillas into the talks.

Saigon's refusal to come in led to postponing the Nov. 6 scheduled opening of the expanded talks. South Vietnam said it will not go to the table unless it leads the allied delegation, unless Hanoi agrees in advance to a conference agenda and unless the Viet Cong come only as part of the North Vietnamese delegation.

In Washington, Clifford Tuesday told newsmen that if Saigon continues its boycott, "I believe the President has the constitutional responsibility of proceeding with the talks." He suggested talks could go on about military deescalation, leaving political questions for the time when Saigon does join.

U. S. Artillery Rakes The Demilitarized Zone

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Army and Marine artillery fired into the demilitarized zone Tuesday for the second time in three days after North Vietnamese gunners were reported to have fired on a South Vietnamese post from inside the zone. Later the location of the guns was questioned.

A U.S. spokesman said 10 mortar rounds hit an artillery base of the South Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division four miles east of Con Thien, inflicting light casualties. A U.S. communique said a ground observer reported seeing the muzzle flashes of enemy guns "between 500 and 1,000 meters inside the southern edge of the demilitarized zone."

"U.S. Army and Marine artillery fires were directed into the enemy positions with unknown results," it said.

Later a U.S. Command spokesman said a report had been received that the enemy firing positions may have been just south of the DMZ. "The incident is being further investigated," he said.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported there were two attacks on the base, one at 6:30 a.m. Tuesday and the second at 1:30 p.m., and both came from south of the DMZ. A government spokesman said enemy gunners fired a total of 30 mortar rounds into the base from two firing positions, one 200 to 300 yards south of the DMZ and the other about 3,000 yards to the south.

Before President Johnson halted the bombing of North Vietnam on Nov. 1, he warned that productive peace talks could not be conducted "in an atmosphere where the cities are being shelled and the demilitarized zone is being abused."

Nine days after the bombing halt, on Sunday, North Vietnamese gunners in the DMZ shelled U.S. Marine positions just south of the buffer zone, killed four Leathernecks and wounded 41.

U.S. Defense Secretary Clark Clifford said Tuesday the shellings Sunday were considered "a matter of seriousness" by the U.S. government but that so far they did not constitute a pattern.

Other sources in Washington and Saigon said the shellings appeared to be provocations to test or possibly humiliate Washington.

Military spokesmen also reported rocket, mortar and recoilless rifle attacks on four American bases in South Vietnam's Central Highlands and on two provincial capitals to the east and west of Saigon.

Ground action was light. One of the shellings, against a U.S. 4th Infantry Division patrol base in the highlands six miles from the Cambodian border, was followed by a ground attack by an enemy force of unknown size hurling hand grenades and firing small arms. U.S. headquarters said three American infantrymen were killed and 21 wounded in the ground attack. Three Communist soldiers broke through the U.S. lines but were gunned down, a spokesman said.

A South Vietnamese spokesman said two children were killed and 35 civilians wounded in the shellings of the two provincial capitals. One policeman also was killed and five policemen and three South Vietnamese army soldiers wounded.

Meanwhile, five U.S. Navy Swift boats attacked a Viet Cong stronghold in the Bo De-Cua Lon river system at the southern tip of Vietnam. They were supported by U.S. Army helicopter gunships, South Vietnamese planes and guns of other Navy and Coast Guard ships.

A military spokesman said the attack destroyed 141 sampans, 143 enemy structures and 23 bunkers, and at least one Viet Cong was killed.

On two occasions the Swift boats encountered heavy sniper and automatic weapons fire, but unlike a similar operation Oct. 20, when three of the boats were hit and five Americans were wounded, the speedy craft escaped unscathed.

Adm. John S. McCain Jr., commander of U.S. forces in the Pacific told newsmen in Honolulu: "There isn't any doubt in the world that the North Vietnamese are licked." He had just returned from a two-day visit to South Vietnam.

New Nixon Appointee Hopeful on Dem Help

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

NEW YORK (UPI)—The administration of President-elect Richard M. Nixon, now under construction at his New York headquarters, expects the Democratic Congress to play ball with the White House next year on major issues involving national interest.

This hopeful attitude was expressed by Bryce N. Harlow after his announced appointment Tuesday as the first of several White House officials in the new administration who will carry the title of "assistant to the president."

Harlow, 52, a native of Oklahoma City, will be "manager of legislative and congressional affairs" for the president, a post much like the legislative liaison job held by Lawrence F. O'Brien during the Kennedy and Johnson administrations before he moved up to postmaster general.

For six of the eight Eisenhower years at the White House, the soft-spoken Harlow, a Phi Beta Kappa scholar at the University of Oklahoma, knew what it was for a Republican administration to deal with a Democratic Congress.

Eisenhower had two personal friends who occupied powerful Democratic leadership positions on Capitol Hill—the late Speaker Sam Rayburn and the then-Senate Majority Leader, Lyndon B. Johnson. They frequently helped clear the way for Eisenhower legislative recommendations.

Nixon has no comparable personal tie with the current Democratic leadership in Congress and Harlow may find his liaison chores more difficult than they were in the 1950s.

Asked how he thought Nixon would fare with an opposition Congress, however, Harlow told reporters:

"I do not anticipate extreme difficulty for the president in that regard. There will be some areas of difficulty, of course, but in your great areas, both parties, regardless of their partisan differences, are involved with the national interests and they have to perform willy-nilly—and I think they will."

Nixon will have something other than Harlow's experience to help with his congressional relations. The Republicans hope the lesson is not being lost on Democratic Hill leaders that Nixon is cooperating openly and extensively with President Johnson on foreign policy, particularly Vietnam negotiations, during the transition period.

As the Nixon staff emerged—Harlow's was the second appointment; the first was Rose Mary Woods as Nixon's personal secretary—a pattern seemed clear. The chain of command will be directly from Nixon to the Cabinet and a small number of "assistants to the president," under whom will be a larger number of special assistants.

That County Sales Levy A Bit Closer to Reality

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

A resolution with provisions for a 3 per cent county-wide sales tax to become effective March 1 is being prepared and will be presented Thursday night for action by the County Legislature, it was confirmed today by the County Attorney's Office.

The Freeman in an exclusive story on Nov. 7, revealed that an executive conference was scheduled that night on the preparation of a resolution for a county-wide sales tax.

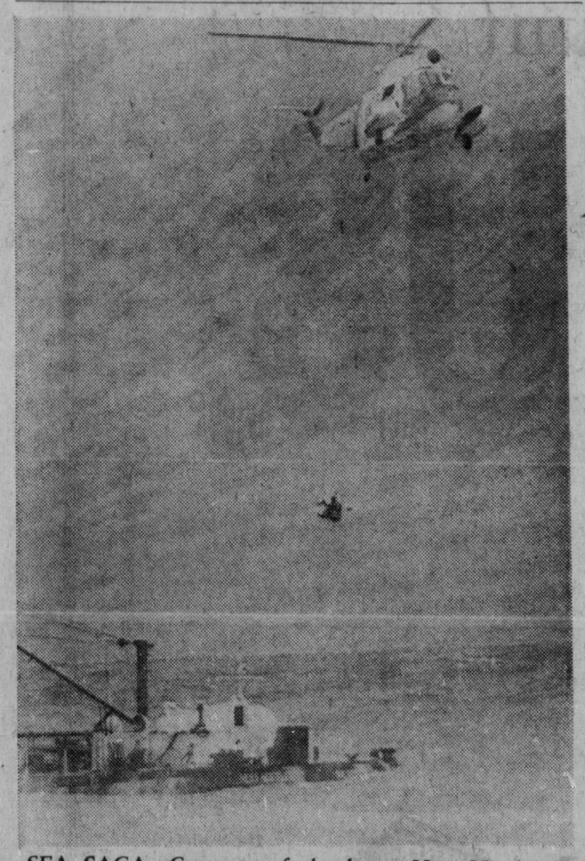

County Attorney Abram F. Moleyneaux said this morning that the resolution is being prepared and that he is expecting further data from the State Department of Taxation and Finance in Albany to incorporate into the proposal.

Although copies of the resolution were not available at this time, it is expected that the measure will be introduced by the Legislature's Tax Base Study Committee headed by Legislator Clarence Raichle, R-Kingston.

It has been estimated that a 3 per cent sales levy could raise in excess of $7 million annually which county officials have indicated would be used to reduce the levy on real property. If the measure is approved Thursday night and collections start March 1, the county would receive its first receipts from the state late in July or early in August.

Under the plan, the Kingston City sales tax of 2 per cent would be abandoned. Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan has indicated this in a message to the County Legislature some time ago. Distribution of the sales tax receipts will have to be worked out between the county and city. The state currently has a 2 per cent sales tax, and if the county measure is adopted will start collecting 5 per cent on the same items that are currently being taxed. The county's share would be distributed by the state each quarter.

The sales tax proposal has many supporters in the Legislature, who have cited the great need for additional funds to meet the expenses of capital projects under consideration by the county for next year. Among these are a new jail, county airport, infirmary and establishment of a tax mapping program including reassessment of all properties in the county.

SEA SAGA—Crewman of the barge Hess Hustler is rescued in a basket by a Coast Guard helicopter. The barge, carrying about a million gallons of fuel oil ran aground at Rehoboth Beach, Del., after breaking away from its tug in a storm. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Pollution Threatens Beaches in Delaware

REHOBOTH BEACH, Del. — (UPI) — Emergency equipment was rushed here today by the Coast Guard to protect sandy beaches in this popular resort from further damage as a grounded barge leaked oil from 200 yards offshore.

The barge, loaded with more than one million gallons of oil, ran aground in high seas and in near hurricane force winds Tuesday, spreading oil slick over 400 yards of the beach.

A Coast Guard spokesman said an oil boom was on its way to prevent the slick from spreading. Attempts also were to be made to dissolve the slick, the Coast Guard spokesman added.

The barge, owned by the Hess Oil Co., broke loose from the tug Palmer Gaillard at the mouth of Delaware Bay and was sighted shortly before dawn offshore here.

When the vessel went aground one of the two crewmembers was swept overboard. Ray Ronaldson, 48, Brooklyn N. Y., was rescued by a Rehoboth Beach volunteer fireman who waded through the surf. Ronaldsen was admitted to Beebe Hospital in nearby Lewes in fair condition.

The other crewman, Tobias Briseid, of Island Heights, N. J., was taken from the barge by a Coast Guard helicopter. He was treated for exposure.

The beach is one of the most popular summer resorts in the area and was visited frequently by Lynda Bird Johnson and Major Chuck Robb during their courtship.

The 50-year-old Democrat assemblyman from Jackson Heights, Queens, had been responding favorably to the surgery until 24 hours prior to his death.

S. Korea Reports Infiltrators

SEOUL (AP)—The South Korean government revealed today that a second band of North Korean guerrillas landed on South Korea's east coast two weeks ago, bringing the total number of invaders in the area to 60 this month, twice the number reported earlier.

The government says 28 members of the Communist force have been killed.

Defense Minister Yim Choong-Shik told a news conference one of the guerrilla bands landed near Ulchin, 130 miles southeast of Seoul, and the other group went ashore 35 miles north of Ulchin near the village of Smachok.

$900 Leaves Area Travel Office

A burglary at the office of the Ellenville Travel Service, Inc., at 118 South Main Street, in that community, that netted approximately $900 in cash, was under investigation today by village and state police officials.

According to authorities, entry was gained through a side window and the money was taken from the safe, the corner of which was evidently pried open.

The break-in was discovered yesterday by Attorney Lawrence Levine, who operates the travel agency with Mrs. Levine.

It was reported that furniture in the office was overturned by the intruders and cabinet drawers were tampered with, police said.

Ellenville BCI officers are investigating the burglary with local police in charge of Chief Abe Rand. The break-in occurred sometime Monday night or early Tuesday.

Demolition Starts at Old M-W Store

The Kingston Urban Renewal Agency announced today that its demolition contractor, the S.A.S. Equipment Company of North Bergen, N. J., has begun demolition of the former Montgomery Ward building at the corner of North Front Street and Fair Street extension.

Ward B. Tongue, acting executive director of the urban renewal agency told The Freeman that preliminary demolition will be completed this week on the building which involves stripping and removing of outside wire. Monday, a crane will be used to begin the actual leveling of the building.

The agency announced that the area around the building, both on North Front Street and Fair Street extension, has been barricaded and that the sidewalks in front and along side of the building will be closed to pedestrians during the demolition of the structure.

The agency has asked for the cooperation of all citizens in complying with the temporary re-routing of both pedestrian and vehicular traffic which will be necessary during demolition operations in the area.

The demolition of the Montgomery Ward building marks the first step toward the preparation for the construction of a parking structure at this site in the Uptown area.

APOLLO PROFILE PLAN — This is the plan profile for the Apollo 8 mission in which the U. S will send three astronauts around the moon next month. The decision was disclosed Tuesday. The goal is to clear the way for putting an American on the moon during 1969, the goal set forth by President John F. Kennedy on May 25, 1961. (NASA PHOTO FROM UPI TELEPHOTO).

Astros Step Up Yule Shot Plans

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Apollo 8 launch team and astronauts, given the "go" to shoot for the moon at Christmas, stepped up preparations here today knowing they have less room for mistakes than on any previous manned space venture.

"My own mental outlook," observed an executive with North American Rockwell Corp., prime Apollo spaceship builder, "is that in the past, as we loaded propellents and got spaceships ready to fly, there has always been that little thing in the back of your mind that says you can bring the astronauts back to earth quickly if something goes wrong."

Preparing for a flight around the moon, however, when the Apollo—crew could be three or more days away from earth if trouble were to develop, "the outlook is different," said Bastian Hello, vice president and general manager of launch operations for North American's space division here.

"The name of the game this time is to give them every ounce of energy you can pack in the fuel tanks," to give Apollo 8 every change to get back if it gets off course, Hello said, while at the same time making certain spaceship systems are ultrareliable.

For example, a new main engine has been installed aboard Apollo 8 "not because the old engine was bad, but because we wanted one that was superb—the best of the breed," Hello said in an interview.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials announced Tuesday that the three Apollo 8 pilots—Air Force Col. Frank Borman, Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr. and Air Force Maj. William A. Anders—have been given the go-ahead to blast off Dec. 21 for a 10-orbit flight around the moon Christmas Eve and Christmas Day.

Apollo 8 will be the first manned flight aboard a huge Saturn 5 superrocket, the type booster built to hurl astronauts to the moon. America's Apollo 7 pilots, who successfully orbited earth for 10 days last month, were launched by a smaller Saturn 1B booster, forerunner of the Saturn 5.

Final Decision Faces the Bishops

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's Roman Catholic bishops are faced with making a final decision on one of the most divisive issues in the church's recent history—whether to loosen the traditional ban against the use of artificial birth controls.

The issue before the National Conference of Catholic Bishops today is whether Pope Paul VI's recent encyclical prohibiting artificial controls should be interpreted to allow a couple's conscience to guide them whether to use contraceptives.

A proposed draft of a pastoral letter recommends the liberal interpretation, although one source said the preliminary report still calls use of artificial controls a sin.

Forty priests punished by Patrick Cardinal O'Boyle of Washington for calling for a choice of conscience were rebuffed Tuesday in their appeal for intervention by the conference.

The bishops also defeated a proposal Tuesday to set up local fact-finding boards to try to ease the strain over dissent in Washington and in San Antonio, where a group of priests have urged the resignation of their archbishop.

The American bishops met in secret for the sensitive showdown on birth control, with their final decision to be made public in a pastoral letter before the end of the conference Friday.

The bishops made no move to intervene in the Washington punishment dispute as one cardinal lashed out at the dissenting priests for rejecting local mediation.

Lawrence Cardinal Shehan of Baltimore, who has headed the bishops' arbitration panel, said the priests had made a serious error. But the Rev. John E. Corrigan, leader of the dissenters, said Cardinal O'Boyle "has given no sign of good faith in the mediation effort."

Father Corrigan said the priests' "situation is hopeless unless the bishops act."

New Holiday White House Likely

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Backstairs with the new administration:

After regarding Key Biscayne, Fla., for some years as his favorite vacation spot, President-elect Richard M Nixon may have to consider another location for his holiday White House.

Last week after the election, Nixon and his famly used a house owned by Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., who first introduced the president-elect to south Florida when Key Biscayne was little more than a picturesque tropical jungle.

The island has grown steadily as far as residences and businesses are concerned and it no longer is an isolated community which seldom attracts tourists as it was when Nixon first visited the area.

Difficult to Protect

The Smathers house and the adjoining home of C. G. (Bebe) Rebozo, Nixon's close friend, would be difficult for the Secret Service to protect without considerable inconvenience to the neighbors.

Fencing, electronic detectors and other security devices would have to be installed if the president-elect continued to use the Bay Lane section of Key Biscayne as a more or less permanent resort.

As it is now, the section is a quiet neighborhood with no fences or barriers between the houses which appear to have a common lawn stretching for at least a block.

The Secret Service, the White House Signal Agency and others in federal government concerned with a President's comfort and safety, would have to install sizeable generating equipment for emergency power supply. A formidable amount of communications equuipment would have to be situated close by and a system of flood-lighting installed.

Security Meeting

There were meetings of top security experts at Key Biscayne a few days after the election, not with Nixon, but with top members of his personal staff.

No hard decisions were made in these conferences, but they ended on a question: "If not Key Biscayne, where?

Nixon and his family, of course, will have the use of Camp David, the comfortable presidential retreat in the Catoctin Mountains of Western Maryland—fine for summer but not much of a winter resort.

Consideration of Nixon's safety intensified over last weekend with the arrest of three Arab immigrants from Yemen for conspiring to murder the president-elect. These men had been in New York for some time, had the weapons to do the job and apparently were biding their time.

Relabeling of Drugs Urged by Scientists

By RALPH DIGHTON

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — A panel of 200 scientists has found scores of drugs tested in a study for the federal Food and Drug Administration "totally ineffective."

The panel called for relabeling of more than 2,000 drugs—two-thirds of those tested so far in the study.

Dr. Robert K. Cannan of the National Academy of Sciences told a group of science writers that revision is necessary because "the labels were misleading and devious."

"They left the impression that a drug could do what it cannot do," he said. "To put it bluntly, there was not a fair representation of the drug in question."

Dr. Cannan reported on a two-year study of drugs placed on the market between 1938 and 1962. The study now is about 87 per cent complete, and there is no reason to suspect that the two-thirds figure will change when the study of 3,600 formulations is finished, he said.

The study, being made by a National Academy of Sciences panel at the FDA's request, covers drugs introduced prior to 1962—about 85 per cent of all those now on the market.

Those introduced since 1962 have been subject to laws requiring that label claims be substantiated.

Dr. Cannan said 6 per cent of the drugs tested so far have been "rated totally ineffective" despite elaborate claims.

The biochemist declined to name brands, saying that was up to the FDA. A full report will be made when the study is completed, probably early next year.

Only a small fraction of the drugs covered in the study can be bought over the counter, Dr. Cannan said. The rest are prescription items.

CP Associations to Sponsor Allied Health Career Day

The United Cerebral Palsy Associations of New York State will sponsor an Allied Health Professions Career Day at Ithaca College on Wednesday, Dec. 4. The announcement was made today by Robert Grant, coordinator for the Career Day, and an assistant professor of Physical Therapy at the College.

Invitations for the Career Day are being sent to guidance counselors in all public, private and parochial high schools in New York State. "We realize that many of them will not be able to attend because of the distance involved," Grant added, "but we do want them to know what we are doing. We are asking the counselors to bring with them all male and female students who are interested in learning about the allied health careers."

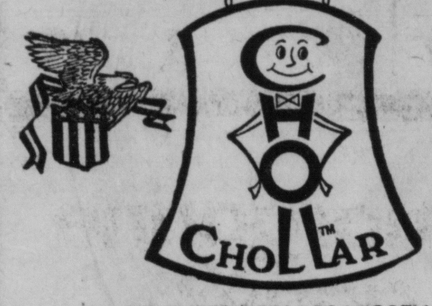

The local Cerebral Palsy Association is making arrangements to provide transportation for those wishing to attend Career Day. For further information United Cerebral Palsy of Ulster County, 400 Broadway, Kingston, may be contacted.

VICTORY AT LAST — It took 43 years but John T. Scopes, (C) a one-time Dayton, Tenn., biology teacher, on Tuesday finally won his argument that he was legally right in trying to teach that Darwin was right. A unanimous Supreme Court decision that struck down an Arkansas law forbidding the teaching of evolution in the public schools contained the same basic issue as the famed Scopes "monkey trial" in the summer of 1925. That trial brought about a clash of two of the foremost legal figures of the day — Clarence Darrow (L) leading the defense of Scopes and William Jennings Bryan (R) serving as a special attorney for the prosecution. Tax Picture for 1969-70:

Albany Chiefs 'Playing It Cool'

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Republican and Democratic legislative leaders are taking a cautious approach to any proposal for a tax increase for fiscal 1969-1970.

The "play it cool now" note was sounded in recent statements by the leaders who feel there is a possibility that the state's anticipated budget of $6 billion plus "might" be balanced without any new levies.

The key words are "might be."

From now until early in January when the new Republican-controlled legislature is gaveled to order, the state's top fiscal experts will be hard at work preparing the next year's spending program.

Need Right Answers

They must come up with the right answers to the ever-mounting cost of government. This year it may be a little tougher than in former years despite Republican majorities in the Senate and Assembly.

This is especially true in the Assembly where the GOP margin is 77 to 73. But the larger house is composed of members with conservative, liberal and middle-of-the-road leanings. Getting a consensus may be more difficult than appears on the surface.

Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges, R-Niagara Falls expressed optimism when he said the budget "might be" balanced without new taxes. Assembly Majority Leaders Moses Weinstein, D-New York, in January, agreed.

Assembly Minority Leader Perry B. Duryea, who is slated to become speaker, decided on a middle-of-the-road approach and said that while it "might be" possible, he could not close the door to a tax increase.

A few years ago a record $3.2 budget was adopted. If costs continue to escalate, and there's no firm reason now to believe they won't, the 1969-1970 budget will be close to doubling that figure.

Limit to the Cuts

Republicans are sure to look for certain cuts in expenditures, but there's a limit even to that. Some construction projects, for which funds have already been appropriated, may be scuttled, temporarily.

In recent years the experts approached the revenue problem in different ways. There was a 2 per cent statewide sales tax, and a state-wide lottery-for-education. The latter proved anything but successful and the former may have reached its saturation point.

There have been levies on cigarettes, gasoline, liquor, and business. None of these however, are broad-based enough to meet the state's needs.

The "fee" system of raising revenue, used a few years ago, isn't likely to be tried again. Some legislators argued, probably rightly so, that a "fee" was another name for a tax. It had the same effect of thinning out the taxpayers pocketbooks.

It is logical to assume that if a tax increase becomes necessary, it must be broad-based, such as an increase in the personal income tax, a surcharge on personal income or a percent upgrading of the sales tax.

Budget First Item

Before the final figures are known, the various state departments will have to submit their budgets. Sizeable increases might be requested by the Education and Welfare Departments.

So far the 1969-1970 "Battle of the Budget" is shaping up as a skirmish.

As one legislator said "the ammunition train has not arrived yet."

Goodell Seat OK Until Late 1970, Court Ruling Dismisses 3 Lawsuits

NEW YORK (AP) — A three-judge federal court has ruled that Charles Goodell, who was appointed by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller to succeed the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, may keep his Senate seat until Dec. 1, 1970.

The court ruled 2-1 Tuesday that the 29-month appointment would not violate the 17th amendment to the Constitution, which states that a governor may make only a "temporary" appointment to fill a vacancy in the U. S. Senate.

The Constitution specifies no time limit for such appointments, but the State Election Law says they may last up to 31 months.

Tuesday's ruling dismissed three lawsuits labeling the appointment unconstitutional and calling for a special election in November 1969 to fill out the rest of Kennedy's term.

Kennedy, a Democrat, was slain in Los Angeles in June. Rockefeller, a Republican, appointed Goodell, also a Republican, as Kennedy's successor on Sept. 10.

Goodell, a 42-year-old congressman from Jamestown, N.Y., had served in the House since 1959.

Kennedy's term would have ended on Dec. 31, 1970. The next Senate term begins Jan. 1, 1971. Since Goodell will serve only until Dec. 1, 1970, the seat could remain vacant for a month.

The majority opinion handed down Tuesday was written by Chief Judge J. Edward Lumbard of the U.S. Court of Appeals. "The governor is empowered to make a temporary appointment with the appointee serving until Dec. 1, 1970," Lumbard said.

District Judge John O. Henderson concurred with Lumbard, but District Judge Marvin E. Frankel disagreed. He wrote:

"This is an unprecedented extension of the 'temporary' appointive power. It is sanctioned today in what appears to be the first judicial scrutiny of the proviso in question. The result, I believe, is in error."

Lumbard noted that under the State Election Law, any election held to fill a Senate vacancy must be preceded by a June pri-

Lady Bird Will Make A Farewell Journey

WASHINGTON (AP) Lady Bird Johnson will make her final trip around the nation as First Lady later this month "to get reacquainted with the America behind the headlines . . ."

Preliminary plans have the "farewell journey," as it was described by the White House, starting Nov. 22 in Washington at a ceremony for immigrants being sworn in as citizens.

Foreign journalists and other companions will join the First Lady on a four-day 6,000-mile trip to New Orleans; Cape Kennedy, Fla.; Denver, Colo., and then to Eureka, Calif., for dedication of the Redwood National Park.

"It will be a wonderful way to get reacquainted with the America behind the headlines—and to introduce some foreign friends to our country," said Mrs. Johnson in a statement today.

The First Lady, a vigorous supporter of national beautification calls an outstanding example of private community renewal.

The trip will wind up with a full day in Redwood National Park, a 58,000-acre preserve created by the 90th Congress.

The Denver visit will also include a stop at Larrimer's Square, which the White House tion projects, has made about 40 trips during her five years in the White House, covering 100,000 miles and 125 cities and towns.

At this trip's first stop—New Orleans—Mrs. Johnson will attend the opening of a repertory theater and visit Xavier University of Louisiana, a participant in the Teacher Corps program.

She and her party will then meet with astronauts in Cape Kennedy.

She's to dedicate a new neighborhood health center in Denver and visit an existing center. She'll attend a premiere of an Office of Economic Opportunity firm describing new federal health programs.

What happens to the world's best margarine container after the margarine's gone?

Virginia Parker uses it to bake cupcakes for her son in the service. She knows if it's airtight enough for our margarine, it will keep her cupcakes fresh all the way to Viet Nam.

Sam Gorn arranges flowers in it. Elvira Palladino turns it into an Easter basket.

The world's best margarine container now has smooth sides.

Our old container. Our new container.

All this fuss over our container. And all we really wanted to do was keep our margarine's flavor fresh and sweet in the most airtight aluminum container we could make. We're still finding ways to improve our container. We've just given it new sides that are smooth. Still airtight, but the ridges are gone so you can get out every last smidgeon of that fresh, sweet Mrs. Filbert's taste.

Prepare for the Snow

Now that we have had a taste of winter and an idea of what to expect in the months immediately ahead, officials in charge of our streets and highways should bestir themselves to prepare for adequate handling of the snow and ice.

The problem of dangerous streets and roads from snow and ice can be met by a carefully planned system, which among other things calls for prompt action and intelligent use of manpower and equipment. One method of efficient snow removal before the streets become blocked with snow is to battle the storms while they are in progress. Waiting until the streets are buried under huge drifts is not the efficient way to operate as we know from experience.

The same is true of icy street conditions. Don't wait until there is a big tie up of cars on hills and grades or several crashes of motor vehicles before sanding the streets. Knowledge of local conditions and experience in past years should help in the matter of treating streets.

Before we get all tangled up with storms, let's plan now to handle them.

Park Vandalism

Recent vandalism at the National Little League, Inc., athletic field in Kingman Park, which left damaged property estimated at $3,000, was a senseless act and a crime and should be handled as such. Anyone having knowledge of the identities of the persons involved in this particular case should give the information to the police.

There are too many young children in the community who enjoy the Little League to let hoodlums wreck the program and get away with it.

There are other recreation facilities in the city, which will not used during the winter months, that must be protected. Men and women in the neighborhood of the parks should immediately notify the police when inciments of vandalism occur.

The meting out of stiff sentences to those found guilty will go a long way in preventing further destruction of public or private property.

Christmas Club

Checks amounting to more than $2,687,000 have been mailed out by local banking institutions to holders of Christmas Club accounts.

The annual distribution of Christmas Club checks, which this year is a record of both membership and dollars saved, is a stimulant to local business as a large part of this money will used for holiday shopping. In anticipation of the increased volume in sales this year, local merchants have stocked their stores with quality merchandise at attractive prices and are prepared to take care of the entire shopping needs of the people of the surrounding area.

Throughout the nation, some 15,725,000 members will receive an estimated $2,113,624,000. About half of this amount is expected to be spent for holiday gifts.

The Christmas Club provides a method by which we can save during the year for extra spending during the Christmas holidays. The impact upon the business community is extremely healthy. A sound practice, it also is of great convenience in helping individuals meet other year-end expenses.

Is Inflation Checked?

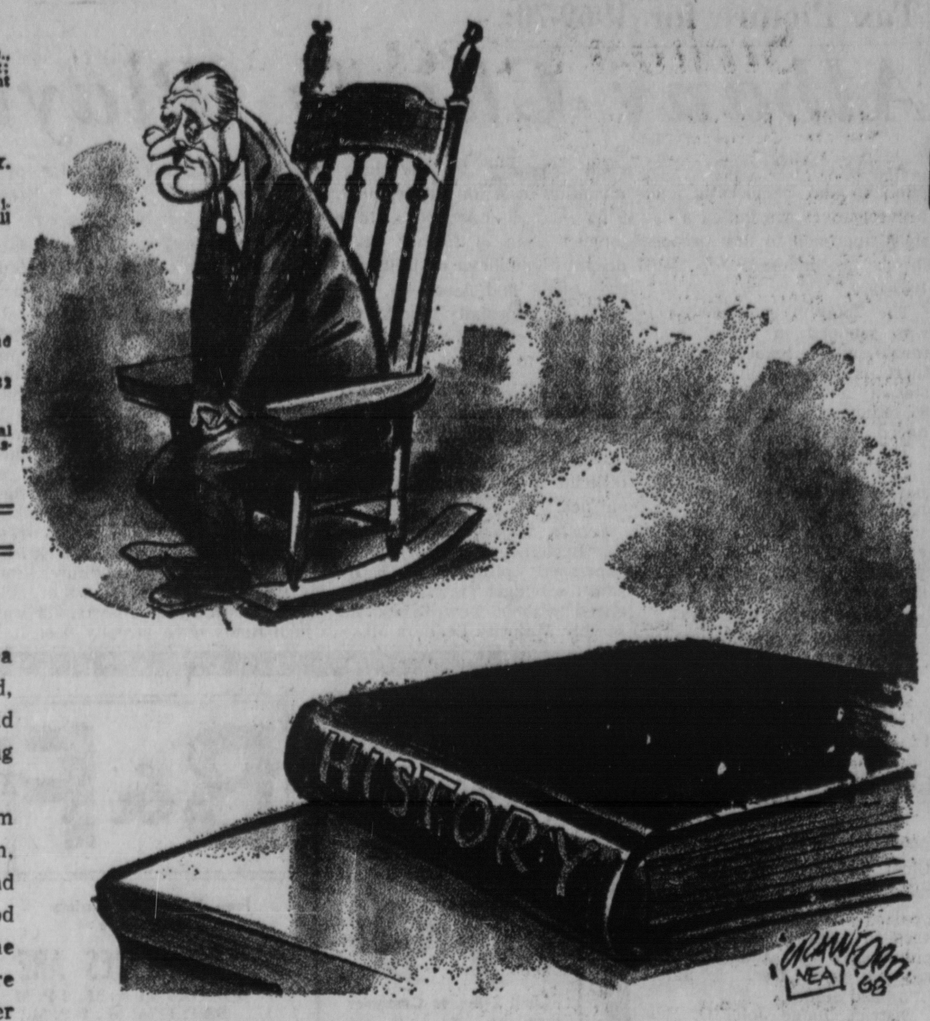

On the basis of nearly complete figures, Chairman Arthur M. Okum, of the Council of Economic Advisors, told President Johnson the third quarter would be the best quarterly performance of the year and should show the liquidity account close to establishing a balance of payments.

Okun was optimistic about the economy throughout. He reported that the corner toward price stability has been turned, not that price stability has been achieved, but that "improvement is a fact — and no longer just a prediction."

"The unhealthy feverish complexion that characterized the economy from late 1967 to mid-1968 is no longer," Okun assured the President. He admitted that the situation would have been much worse without the income tax surcharge.

Despite the striking strength of consumer-spending this summer, a welcome slowdown did begin and is continuing," Okun said. He cited the 0.2 per cent rise in average consumer prices in September as the smallest monthly increase since November, 1967, and still going lower.

The cost of living index is a direct reaction to inflation. If the price of living is on the way to stability, then indeed has the corner been turned and inflation may be under control. That could be very good news as we head into the holidays when the consumer usually goes on the biggest spending spree of the year.

David Lawrence Says

Principles Which Affect Peace Are the Same Today

WASHINGTON—Do times really change? There always seems to be either a war going on or talk about peace or the threat of another war.

Fifty years ago the armistice that terminated World War I was celebrated on November 11 with enthusiasm, but it was nothing like the tremendous outpouring of joy in parades and demonstrations which had come four days earlier when the people of the United States thought the war was over. Actually, a mistaken report—not discovered until many hours later—had started the premature rejoicing.

The report came in a dispatch by the United Press from Paris, and in many ways the pre-armistice celebration was far more unrestrained and more people participated in it than when the real armistice was proclaimed four days later. The erroneous report was due entirely to a misunderstanding in Paris, where a U.S. Navy admiral told a representative of the United Press that the armistice had been agreed upon in nearby Compiegne, where the German armistice commission was carrying on truce negotiations with the Allies. The admiral a few days later explained that he had misunderstood a telephone message, and took full blame for having unintentionally misled the reporter.

The cessation of hostilities turned out to be the beginning of a long negotiation, and was followed by an era of doubt as to whether a firm peace could really be established in Europe.

Just before the armistice of November 11, 1918, the American people had elected on November 5 a Republican majority in both houses of Congress. This was largely due to dissatisfaction over the war. For the United States had never participated in a major war overseas, and many people felt it was a mistake.

So when President Wilson in 1919 signed the Versailles peace treaty, which called for the creation of a League of Nations, the opposition in the Senate was so intense that the treaty was defeated because of the League. It was argued by the critics that the new international organization would mean further involvement of the United States in world affairs and an obligation to maintain peace through military power.

Later on, in 1921, the United States formally declared the war terminated, and ratified separate treaties with Germany, Hungary and Austria, but it never accepted membership in the League of Nations. This course was considered then by many disinterested persons as a grave mistake because, without the active participation of the United States, no international organization could make much headway, and the League of Nations foundered.

In fact, the disarray in Europe in the 1930's and the isolationist sentiment in the United States encouraged Adolf Hitler to believe that, if he wanted to conquer other parts of Europe, he would not be blocked by any military force from the United States. It was only when the militaristic government in Tokyo which was working in collusion with Hitler, decided to attack Pearl Harbor, so as to divert American strength from possible help to Western Europe, that the United States in December 1941 got into World War II. Hitler was mistaken when he assumed that America would not eventually join the battle and aid France and Great Britain to defend themselves on the European front against conquest by the Nazis.

The circumstances have changed in 50 years, and the individuals who lead the various nations or who threaten peace are different personalities. But the fundamental principles which affect peace in the international situation are much the same today. This very month the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is reassembling in Brussels in an effort to increase the military strength of Western Europe and to build a potential defense against Soviet aggression. There are threats of war in the Middle East, and Russia is sending a bigger and bigger fleet into the Mediterranean.

All this is causing apprehension among those who follow carefully the intricate maneuvers of international affairs, most of whom today would agree that times haven't changed much in 50 years.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

If I had known, last summer, that President Lyndon Johnson was about to write books, I'd have run for President. Everybody writes books, and everybody except the pro expects a million dollar fee. Ironically, in the matter of the Johnson memoirs, a few publishers put the rap on the project, claiming that the President's popularity is low.

Erskine Caldwell had none when he wrote "God's Little Acre." Ernest Hemingway was practically unknown when he wrote "A Farewell to Arms." Herr Doctor Goebles was hated, even in death, when his "Diaries" became a best-seller. Konrad Heiden's "Adolf Hitler" embraced a biography calculated to alienate all readers, but it is still the standard work on the Fuehrer.

The inside, unvarnished Lyndon Johnson story has never been told. No man in politics in the 20th century knows more about where the bodies are buried, and who buried them, than the current President. If he has decided, after leaving office, to tell the whole story of his political life, from the time he was Congressman Kleberg's secretary through the Los Angeles convention fight with the Kennedys, the Vice Presidency, the assassination, and his five years in the White House, he will have a series of runaway best-sellers.

As everyone knows, I am partial to this man because I feel that he was unable to communicate his highspeed industry and accomplishments to the public. He kept coming up on t.v. as a leathery Texan with a hard glitter. The growling voice had a high-noon pitch. His detractors said that he was devious, a wheeler-dealer.

In the matter of word usage, the President has faith in his wife's opinions. He told me that he would not make a speech of any sort without first reading it to her in his bedroom. He accepted her judgment in the matter of alterations "because she has a degree in journalism." This does not qualify Mrs. Johnson as an author, but it is safe to assume that any writing the President may do will be examined and pre-edited by his wife.

In their time, the Kennedys took over the book business as though they had invented it. The fees jumped higher and higher until, in death, Senator Robert Kennedy hit the peak with one million dollars for his version of the Cuban missile crisis. It was unrevealing and designed to make his brother look like a harassed hero, which he was.

News reports last week indicate that President Johnson's friend, Arthur Krim, President of United Artists, is the literary scout who has been rapping on publishers' doors to confer about the publication of the Johnson story — at, say, a million dollar guarantee.

Mr. Krim is a good businessman, but he is hardly a literary agent. Of course, it can be cited that Ethel Kennedy sent Ted Sorensen out to peddle her late husband's little aide-memoire for a million, and Sorensen the speech-writer is no literary agent. In spite of such economic triumphs, I prefer the pro to represent me, and it is hard to beat agents such as Phyllis Jackson of Ashley-Famous, and Don Congdon.

They know book royalty structures, first serial rights, second serial rights, foreign magazine rights, foreign book and translation rights, picture and t.v. rights, etc. For an author to select anyone except a literary agent to represent him is akin to acting as his own lawyer in court.

If I were a book publisher, I would inquire at once of Mrs. Lyndon Johnson if she proposes to write a book. She is the only First Lady who kept a daily diary every day since she moved into the White House. Her recollections of the great and awful days are already half written.

The title of the first book should be: "Now It's My Turn."...

Drew Pearson Says

Russia to Be Biggest Problem When Nixon Becomes President

WASHINGTON — Biggest problem facing Richard Nixon when he becomes President will be relations with the only other nation which has a nuclear stockpile—Soviet Russia.

It is also the nation with the biggest arsenal of missiles—next to ours — the second biggest Navy in the world, and a standing army bigger than ours.

One week after he became President, Lyndon Johnson decided that if the two most powerful nations in the world—the USA and USSR—could cooperate, there could be world peace.

Since then he has worked hard at this policy, and on the whole it has paid off. The Russians have curbed their plutonium stockpole, lived up to the Test-Ban Treaty, signed a very important Non-Proliferation Pact, signed a consular pact which we wanted more than they, opened a direct airline between Moscow and New York, and expressed their willingness last spring to discuss a limitation of missiles and of anti-ballistic millile networks.

Incidentally, we have found the Russians scrupulous in living up to treaty agreements. Satelliete observation is such that our intelligence services have an excellent idea what Soviet missile strength is and what tests are being made. Ever since the Cuban missile crisis, we have found that the Russians have been careful about their statements. In the recent Vietnam truce talks they did not promise too much, but made good on what they did.

Nixon, however, will approach Soviet-American relations with some handicaps. He has urged postponement of Senate action on the vitally important Non-Proliferation Pact. He has said during the recent campaign that he favored going ahead with the $50 billion anti-ballistic missile network; also wants to increase the missile stockpile. This is just the opposite of the Johnson policy.

Nixon's Kitchen Debate

Previoulsy Nixon had visited Russia, engaged in the so-called kitchen debate with Nikita Khrushchev which he used in his subsequent election campaign to put Khrushchev in a bad light. The Russians had gone out of their way to give Nixon a rousing welcome, and remember vividly how Nixon turned a gesture of Russian hospitality into a matter of political expediency.

They also remember how he climbed to political power by falsely claiming that such non-communists as Rep. Jerry Voorhis and Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas of California were pro-communist. All of this gives the new President a reputation for insincerity and political expediency with the government with which he must now do business if he is to continue the present policy of Soviet-American peacekeeping for the world.

However, the Russians are pragmatic people. They also recognize pragmatism when they see it, and they see it in Mr. Nixon.

Shortly before he was nominated at Miami Beach, he approached the State Department with a view to visiting Moscow. The Russians agreed. This is not hearsay, but fact. Then, following the Czech invasion, Nixon decided it would not be smart politics for him to go to Russia, and the trip was called off.

However, you can be pretty sure the Russians will still talk to Nixon. They'll probably keep their fingers crossed and be more wary than with LBJ whom they had come to trust. But the basic point is that the Russians, even including most of the hardliners, believe that the future of world peace depends on cooperation between the two super-powers.

They recognize that the United States and the Soviet now have very similar problems, even down to students. In Prague the Czech students have been rioting against Moscow very much as Mexican students were rioting against the United States. The Russians will also deftly remind you—when you criticize their armed invasion of Czechoslovakia — that the United States put 20,000 troops into the tiny Dominican Republic only a short time ago for exactly the same reason the Russians went into Czechoslovakia: namely refusal to let a foreign ideology get planted in a country very close to one's own.

Special Session of Senate

The question of Nixon's cooperation with Russia will first come to a head if President Johnson calls a special session of the Senate to ratify the nuclear Non-Proliferation Pact. He has been seriously considering such a move.

The Non-Proliferation Pact was negotiated with great difficulty. While the United States and the Soviet Union had little trouble reaching an agreement, they had great trouble with smaller countries.

West Germany, Italy, and Brazil, all good friends and allies of the United States, were extremely reluctant about giving up their right to nuclear production.

The Soviet also had trouble with some of its allies such as Romania, though Romania in the end signed the pact.

President Johnson feels that time is of the essence. If the United States, which initiated the treaty, does not ratify, we will lose forever the chance to get the approval of the smaller countries. This would lead to a nuclear race in which any little country could blackmail the rest of the world with one bomb.

LBJ is hoping that now that Nixon is elected he will change his mind about the pact.

Strange War in Cambodia, Sihanauk Alerts Country

By GEORGIE ANNE GEYER

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia, Nov. 9 — It's a strange insurrection, the "little war" in Cambodia.

Though armed clashes and casualties are reported nearly every day in the press, the Cambodian government has yet to produce a single rebel for public view.

Observers who have studied the "battles" taking place in the Cambodian mountains say the rebels could be Communists, they could be a anti-Communists, or they could be peasants revolting over the low price of rice.

There are reasons why they could be supported from Thailand, North Vietnam, Laos, China, the United States, South Vietnam, the National Liberation Front, which is the Viet Cong's political arm, or any combination of these.

Or, say observers, they could be simply Cambodian bandits such as those who are always present on these unpoliced borders.

Whatever is happening in Cambodia, it's beginning to cause concern. In the last few months, clashes between Cambodian military and the rebels have increased. Early in November, the radio scolded the rebels for carrying on so on the occasion of Prince Nordom Sihanouk's birthday.

Sihanouk is taking the uprising very seriously and has alerted his entire country of 6,000,000.

The incidents are particularly significant in the context of all the little rebellions along the borders of China in Southeast Asia. From Southeastern India to Northeastern Burma to Thailand to Cambodia and Laos, the story is the same — local insurgencies.

The question is whether this rebellious ring represents a coordinated action, say, by Red China or North Vietnam, or whether these movements are simply individual events bred out of tribal dissatisfactions with uncaring central governments.

In Cambodia, where the news is totally controlled by the Government, the best estimate is that there are several rebel movements, each with its own cast.

There is the Khmer Rouge (the Communists) and the Khmer Bleu (the Anti-Sihanouk Rightists), as well as dissident mountain tribesmen in the Northeast who hook up emotionally with Vietnam's dissident Montagnards, a group called the KKK, which wants to regain for Cambodia the Mekong Delta, and just downright bandits who haunt the border. He is the most charming and considerate host to the V.C. and North Vietnamese delegations. Privately he is quietly and constantly arresting leftists.

The press was dismantled when one paper published a telegram from Peking congratulating the youth movement. The student president was sentenced to death for subversive activities. Mao Tse-Tung's "Red Book" has been found in various spots.

Recently a subversive radio station was dismantled and 40 persons arrested. And foreigners in Phnom Penh tell of seeing men simply taken out by the side of the road and shot.

Sihanouk is adamant about any Communist movements or about any loyalties to foreign powers, even Chinese, who most places retain strong ties to China, in Cambodia must be loyal to Sihanouk.

Almost certainly Khmer Rouge gets aid from foreign Communists, although there is no proof. Its members tend to be teachers and disaffected intellectuals, though it appears some peasants are joining the movement because of purely local complaints.

The Khmer Bleu gets aid from Thailand and South Vietnam, Cambodia's two unneighborly neighbors.

None of them appears to present any real threat to Sihanouk's regime. But he is well aware they are there, and he is dealing with them — quietly and effectively. That is probably why the government never gets around to presenting any suspects.

Paris Peace Talks Fouled Up

By KEYES BEECH
Chicago Daily News Foreign Service

SAIGON — When the Paris peace talks started seven months ago, Herman Kahn, the human think tank and a frequent visitor to Saigon, said he would sooner try to settle Arab-Israeli dispute than end the Vietnam war.

That was an understatement.

One week after President Johnson stopped the bombing of North Vietnam, the Paris peace talks were so thoroughly fouled up that it was a temptation to suggest that everybody ought to start all over again.

If Mr Johnson acted too hastily in declaring the bombing halt without getting Saigon's approval, President Nguyen Van Thieu has made matters worse by proposing that his government replace the United States as head of the allied negotiating team in Paris.

And if Hanoi had contrived deliberately to drive a wedge between Saigon and Washington — which is entirely possible — it could not have done a more effective job.

At times during the last week it has seemed that the United States was South Vietnam's enemy, not the Communists. Since Thieu boycotted the Paris talks his government has been busy consolidating popular support against American pressure to go to Paris, without guarantees that South Vietnam's "vital interests" will be protected.

Yesterday Thieu, a shewd and cautious man, committed what soome observers thought was his first major mistake.

Without warning or advance conditioning, he called a press conference to announce his "new formula" for ending the Paris deadlock.

He proposed two-sided talks. According to his formula, Hanoi and the National Liberation Front (NLF) the Viet Cong's political arm, would sit as one delegation with Saigon and the United States making up the other.

"Naturally," he said, South Vietnam will head the allied delegation.

Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker has not seen Thieu since the early morning hours of Nov. 1 when he failed in an eleventh hour attempt to persuade the President to join the Paris talks.

Some sources close to Thieu said he actually intended to be conciliatory, that he was trying to find a way to take part in the Paris talks without yielding to Hanoi's demand that the NLF be seated as a separate and independent body.

If so, he achieved exactly the opposite effect. By inviting the United States to play second fiddle, he gave the appearance of proposing that the tail wag the dog. Instead of softening, his position seemed to harden.

Ideas About Family Size Vary Greatly by Nations

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J., Nov. 12 More Americans at this time favor large families than do the people of 9 other widely separated nations of the world.

Evidence for such a conclusion comes from a survey of 10 nations conducted by Gallup-affiliated organizations in each nation.

Netherlanders are next most likely to favor large families, but the percentage is far below that recorded for Americans.

Of the 10 countries surveyed, people in Austria are least inclined to like the idea of large families. Only 7 per cent in that country think the ideal number of children is four or more.

This question was asked "What do you think is the ideal number of children for a family to have?"

Here are the results for each country, based on the percentage of people saying four or more:

Per Cent Saying Ideal Number Of Children Is 4 or more.

UNITED STATES	41%
Netherlands	24
Great Britain	32
Norway	22
Uruguay	20
Greece (Athens)	19
Finland	14
Sweden	14
Switzerland	11
Austria	7

A look at the U.S. trend on this question shows the idea of big families gaining favor. Two years ago, 35 per cent of adults interviewed said the ideal number of children was four or more.

In 1936, when the U.S. public was first questioned about the ideal number of chhldren in a family, 34 per cent gave as their answer four children or more. The high point over this 32-year period was 49 per cent, in 1945, reflecting the high birth rate of the war years.

The trend:

Ideal-Sized Family: Per Cent Saying Four or More Children

1936	34%
1941	41
1945	49
1960	45
1963	42
1966	35
1968	41

Attitudes Related to Income and Religion

Attitudes toward the ideal family size are closely related to such factors as race, income and religion.

Half (50 per cent) of all Catholic adults say the idea number of children is four or more, while 37 per cent of Protestants hold this view.

Women more than men (45 per cent to 34 per cent) like the idea of a big family.

A far larger proportion of those whose annual income is under $5,000, rather than over, say the ideal number of children is at least four. The percentages are 47 per cent and 37 per cent, respectively.

A larger proportion of Negroes (56 per cent) than whites (47 per cent) think the ideal number of children is four or more.

Sirhan's Security Grows More Difficult

By DICK KLEINER
(West Coast Correspondent)

LOS ANGELES—(NEA)—The sheriff's department of Los Angeles County has 11,000 prisoners in custody. One of them gives them more problems than the other 10,999 put together. He's Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, accused of the murder of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

It's been bad," says undersheriff William McCloud, "and it will get worse." Sirhan's trial is scheduled for Dec. 9, but it could be postponed again. The longer the wait, the worse things are for McCloud.

McCloud is directly in charge of the security and custody of the county's prisoners, including Sirhan.

From the beginning, the major concern of McCloud and his men has been to see that Sirhan is kept alive to face trial. From the moment of his capture—on June 5, 1968, when he was seized at the Ambassador Hotel—that responsibility has been uppermost in McCloud's mind.

At first, Sirhan was held in the central jail. But McCloud felt that the jail's security arrangements could be improved on so, on Sunday, July 7, without advance notice, the prisoner was moved. He has since been kept in the Hall of Justice, in special quarters on the 13th floor.

In Hall of Justice

This floor had been an old section for female prisoners. There were 14 cells in it. Under a long-planned remodeling scheme, the area was to be converted into a briefing room. The conversion was expedited (McCloud says the accusation that the county spent a lot of unnecessary money is untrue, because all they did was advance the date of already-planned remodeling) and finished in time for Sirhan's arrival.

Sirhan is kept in a cell-within-a-cell. Some 50 feet away, still on the same floor, is the temporary courtroom where he has made his subsequent appearances. He has not left the 13th floor since he moved in. This eases McCloud's security job.

But on Dec. 9 he will go on trial formally. That will be held in the Department 107 courtroom, on the eighth floor of the Hall of Justice. That is when McCloud's job will become even more difficult.

Right now Sirhan spends his life in his cell. A temporary shower was installed in an adjoining cell. He has his twice-daily exercise periods in the outer cell, walking up and down, always accompanied by a guard.

He has all the rights and privileges of any other prisoner, with the sole exception that he has no companionship.

Sirhan, McCloud says, spends most of his day reading. He has access to the daily newspapers—"He has a few dollars in his account and buys candy bars and newspapers." He can obtain books from the prison library by selecting them from a list of library books, and does so.

He eats ordinary prison food. Sirhan's lawyer, Russell Parsons, has stated that Sirhan orders whatever he likes, but McCloud denies this emphatically.

McCloud says, "His food is prepared separately, right here in the Hall of Justice, because we are always worried about an attempt to poison him. But his menu is based as nearly as possible on the daily prison menu. We've set up a temporary combination kitchen—stove, refrigerator and sink in one unit—right near his quarters."

He has no radio, television or movie privileges. Neither do any other prisoners on his penal level.

He is entitled to his daily shower. There is a lavatory in his cell. He has the same visitor rights as any prisoner, and his lawyer and investigators and members of his family visit him frequently. He can receive and send letters, but all such communications are "monitored."

Guards Around the Clock

Guards are with him around the clock. McCloud says these are rotated frequently "to avoid complacency—you can't let down on this." They do not fraternize with the prisoner.

When the trial begins, the secure routine will be shattered. McCloud and his men know this is coming and are prepared for it, but they worry anyhow.

"Every time you move him," McCloud says, "you are subject to more problems."

He takes some consolation in the fact that threats against his life have fallen off. But he realizes it only takes one.

Third Party Expects to Grow

By TOM TIEDE
(NEA Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK — (NEA) — There's a new bumper sticker soon to appear on automobiles in the nation. It reads, "George Wallace will rise again!"

The slogan is part boast, part warning. And for millions of the Wallace faithful it is proud declaration that their master's will lives on.

Wallace has long insisted that his American Independent party can not be suffocated by a defeat at the polls.

"We too big, they's too many of us," he has repeatedly grinned. "We gonna be around now for a long time."

Many of his admirers believe it also. And across the nation thousands of them have already begun working toward 1970, 1972 and beyond.

"George didn't create this idea," says Hamp Graves, a top Wallace hand in Indiana. "He just got it moving again. And now, hell, ain't nobody going to stop us; we're going to build a permanent political force."

The building of this permanence, says the Wallaceites, begins at the national level. They speculate the party may go through some hierarchy shuffling, confusion, perhaps even merging and renaming. But then, structuring will begin.

Many realistic third-party workers feel the movement must organize along national chairman, functioning treasury and a national-state-city chain of command. The belief is roots must go deep fast.

Roots Wellgrounded

The party roots, they say, are already fairly well-grounded. Tom Gallion, headquarters co-ordinator, says he has recorded "more than 1,000 official campaign offices in the country and about half again that many unofficial ones. We have over 100 headquarters in California alone.

"The job now," says Gallion, "is to preserve as many of the offices as possible and to keep the volunteer workers interested. We have to establish tight communications so everybody'll know what everybody else is doing.

A Minor Leaguer

"All the party needs to ruin it," says Gallion, "is some Ku Kluxer mouthing off." The professionals prevent this kind of indiscreation, he says, and at the same time keep the sheep from straying away through unmended party fences.

Some third-party people go a step further on professionalism. They believe that Wallace himself may eventually have to go. With all his skills, they explain, his national image has something of the minor league about it"

Whispers one southerner: "George is really too blunt at times. And he's been hampered by the 'Nigra' thing, too. I don't think we ought to rule out a more appealing face — Ronald Reagan, maybe, or somebody like that."

Wallace doubters, however, have not surfaced in any numbers as of yet. There's no anti-Wallace movement afoot. He is still the symbol of the throne.

"Without George," a California John Bircher says, "we'd fall apart. We need him more than ever now. For one thing he controls all the funds and it'll take a hell of a lot of money to buck the old two-party system."

More Than Money

According to history, it'll take more than money. There have been less than a dozen parties of consequence in American electioneering, and only four (in modern times) besides Wallace's that could be fairly labeled major third-party threats.

The other four—Teddy Roosevelt's Bull Moose, Bob LaFollette's Progressive, Henry Wallace's Progressive and Strom Thurmond's States Rights — made what amounted to single, bold inroads in the established voting patterns before erosion of interests relegated them to the political garbage dump.

Still, in spite of the odds, the American Independents are adamant.

"You know who we got on our side," says Wallace. "Red necks, peckerwoods, woolhats and peapickers. In other words, my kinda people."

And his kind, he insists, are here to stay.

Two Restaurants Are Burglarized

Two more restaurants in Kingston were burglarized sometime early today, according to police records.

Fred J. Schryver, proprietor of Schryver's Restaurant at 138 Smith Avenue, said the establishment was entered by removing two storm windows leading to the kitchen. He reported the contents of a coin box on the juke machine consisting of about $100 in change, was taken.

James Mancuso of the Shamrock Tavern, 482 Broadway, reported the tavern was entered by forcing a rear door and the office safe was peeled. He said a small amount of cash was removed from the safe and the coin boxes on a game machine and a juke box were rifled of contents.

Meanwhile, detectives continued investigation of two weekend burglaries reported at Bonnie's Restaurant at 589 Broadway and the Blue Gardenia Club on East Strand. Vending machines at both places were rifled by the intruders, police said.

Storm Fighting Operations Begin Early On Ulster's Southern Tier Highways

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

The season's first major snowstorm closed down public schools and virtually eliminated sales in small business establishments, but Ulster County's southern tier highway and street departments began to combat the effects of the near-blizzard early.

In the Town of New Paltz, Supervisor Anthony Moriello told The Freeman that highway department employes were out on the highways "since 5 a. m."

Moriello said that the township's highway department had four trucks, all equipped for plowing and sanding and that two new sanders were purchased last year.

According to Moriello, Superintendent of Highways Isaac Pole reported that dead-end roads are especially hazardous when the big trucks are forced to turn around.

Autos Snowbound

The highway chief also reported that several autos were snowbound on Jansen Road early in the morning, but that they were quickly freed when department trucks reached them.

In the Village of New Paltz, Street Superintendent Al Sutherland had his three trucks out on the streets at about 6 a. m. salting the thoroughfares.

All of the trucks are equipped for both plowing and sanding.

Over the Shawangunk Mountains in the Town of Wawarsing, acting highway superintendent Karl Fleckenstein claimed that the town's roadways were cleared and that they are "in pretty good shape."

Fleckenstein, who recently was elected to head the highway department and will officially take over on Jan. 1, is presently foreman of the operation and is acting as highway chief for Clifford Marl, vacationing in Florida.

Ellenville Mayor Eugene Glusker said that although streets in the village didn't appear "too bad," Route 209 was "tied up."

Glusker said that "once again, the county is behind the times," and he claimed that at 12 noon on Tuesday, the county sanding truck had not yet reached the village.

Plattekill Town Clerk Edith C. Wager declared that the highway department, headed by Lester C. Wager Sr., was on the job during the storm and that the department's five trucks are all equipped for sanding and plowing.

Eileen R. Baker, town clerk of Rochester, reported that town trucks started sanding operations quite early in the morning.

The town has four large trucks and two smaller pickup trucks. All are equipped, however, with plows and they all can be used for sanding.

Rochester purchased a heavy duty trailer last July 11 on a note that is due in February, 1969.

Supervisor George Majestic of Gardiner said that the town's 40 miles of roadways were covered with slush but that the highway department was out on the job with its four trucks and one road grader.

No Snow Removal

Majestic explained that the department had not become involved in actual snow removal early because of a weather forecast that predicted rain would follow the snow.

"Everybody expected rain to follow," he said, "and we didn't remove the snow in order to save money. It's a lot easier on equipment."

The supervisor did say, however, that the highway employes began belated snow removal operations.

By far the largest department in terms of equipment and personnel of the southern tier townships is Wawarsing. The town's highway department has $69,400 allocated for general materials and supplies in the 1969 budget.

The town has 13 trucks with about 11 of them fitted for plows.

Wawarsing Supervisor Frank W. Harkin said that the department's budget for 1969 is "slightly reduced" in comparison with last year.

The department employees recently voted to be represented by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and the town board had to add $15,000 into budget figurings for personal services.

The department is more than three times as large as its New Paltz counterpart.

$15,000 for New Paltz

The New Paltz Highway Department has been allocated $15,000 for equipment and repairs, down $5,000 from last year's $20,000 figure.

The outlay for snow removal in the township is also down. The 1968 figure called for a $16,000 outlay for snow removal and the 1969 budget has $14,000 set aside for removal of snow.

The Town of Gardiner has an annual outlay of $5,000 for snow removal for its 40 miles of town roads, whereas the New Paltz township has about 53 miles of town-owned thoroughfares.

According to the Rochester town clerk, the town has 115 miles of highways for which $10,000 has been granted for snow removal in the new budget. This is the same figure that was set aside last year.

Rochester also operates under the Irwin Road Plan, a highway improvement program, at a cost of $13,050 of which $5,831.18 is reimbursed by the state.

Plattekill, with five trucks all equipped for sanding and plowing, has $23,000 set aside for snow removal, the same as in last year's budget.

The Plattekill town clerk explained that $26,500 has been granted for highway machinery, a drop of $4,600 over last year's budget outlay.

Child Health Conference Set

A child health conference, conducted by the Ulster County Health Department, will be held at the Tumor Clinic Building, Broadway, Kingston, on Nov. 26 from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m.

In order to avoid overcrowded clinics, the department requests that appointments be made through the Ulster County Health Department between 9 and 10 a. m. Monday through Friday.

Two Injured In 375 Crash

Two persons were injured Tuesday when the car in which they were riding skidded out of control in slush and hit a culvert off Route 375, according to Kingston State Police.

Trooper James Fitzgerald's report noted that Otto E. Marquardt, 73, of 101 Glasco Turnpike, Woodstock, was driving south on the highway and was attempting to pass a sand truck when his vehicle slid in slushy snow and went out of control.

Marquardt and his wife, Heloise, were taken to Kingston Hospital by Doctors Ambulance. Their injuries were not immediately determined, troopers said.

Farmers' Organization To Probe Slum Problems

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Cooperative Extension Service has a new job.

The service was originally established to help farmers, but was advised Tuesday to begin concentrating on the problems of slums.

The proposal came in a report on new directions in extension activities prepared after a two-year review. A committee appointed by the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Cornell University is in charge of the program in New York State.

The report was made public at a news conference preceding its presentation to a convention of the university and college group.

The extension service, financed cooperatively by federal, state and local funds, operates through the state universities and a network of county farm and home agents and area specialists.

The study committee proposed that by 1975 the nationwide service should:

—Double programs for youth and family education and "sharply expand programs to help the disadvantaged and alienated."

—Step up training programs in central city areas while continuing efforts in rural communities.

—Expand efforts in social and economic development and triple work in community development.

—Double programs for low income farmers.

—Shift agricultural extension work toward more concentration on marketing and business management programs, expanding overall agricultural programs to a lesser degree than the expansion for human development action.

Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman said the department, as one of the partners in extension work, will make every effort to help carry out the objectives of the report.

The committee proposed the professional extension staff be expanded from a current level of about 14,000 to around 27,350 by 1975.

The number of extension experts working in agriculture would rise 27 per cent bu the proportion of total effort devoted to agriculture would drop from the current 44 per cent to about 29 per cent.

The report said more than 52,000 additional local aides, hired from among low income groups, should work with extension experts in educational programs.

More federal financing for aides should be sought, and more cities should be urged to contribute to extension program the report said.

Perry Search Centers In Saugerties Locale

Search for 19-year-old Douglas Perry of Flatbush, who is wanted by Kingston police on vehicle and traffic law violations, was centered in the Saugerties area Tuesday night, after authorities received an anonymous call that he was seen in that vicinity.

State police said no trace of the youth, who is reportedly AWOL from the Marine Corps, was found by investigators.

The sheriff's office reported that Deputies Gerald Miller and Bernhard Schwerdtfeger, assisted in last night's search of Saugerties areas with State Police Sergeant Richard Dempsey and uniformed troopers, and area police.

It was reported that a house on Valley Street in the village was under surveillance for some time.

Perry, according to state police, fled from a car he was driving after the vehicle skidded off the highway near Saugerties and crashed into a tree while two troopers were pursuing the car. Perry, Kingston police reported, attempted to run down Patrolman Gerald Tierney Monday morning, after the officer stopped the vehicle on Broadway in the vicinity of City Hall to question the operator.

Tierney was hit by the car and knocked to the pavement, police said. The officer was treated at Kingston Hospital for shoulder bruises.

Anyone having knowledge of the whereabouts of Perry is asked to immediately notify the nearest police agency.

Reduced Charge

Arrested by Highland State Police last week on a charge of possessing a dangerous weapon, Earnest Brown, 47-year-old Highland migrant farm worker, pleaded guilty Tuesday before Lloyd Town Justice Linn Baker to a reduced charge of possessing a firearm. He was sentenced to nine days in the county jail and credited with time served.

The Men from Merrill Lynch look at LEISURE... investment opportunities in this $150-billion market

Send for your forum tickets today

Americans today spend one-third of their time, and a good share of their money, on leisure pursuits—from tennis to TV watching, from camping to concerts, from sewing to swimming. And the prognosis is that, in the future, they'll have even more free time for recreation. Plus more money to spend on it.

Leisure has already created a whole new area of opportunity for investors, an area that shows every promise of expanding in the future.

If you would like to hear a Merrill Lynch Account Executive discuss the industries that now produce leisure goods and services—and get specific information on which stocks our Research Department thinks are attractive within them—come to our

Rockefeller Plantation Is Scoured

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (UPI) — A combined force of soldiers and police today searched the Monserratt coffee plantation owned by Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York to search for the kidnapers of plantation manager Ward Smith and accountant Joffre Leon.

The plantation is 200 miles from Guayaquil. Coffee pickers were said to have seized the two men to enforce demands for higher wages.

Authorities said a search of the sprawling plantation failed to turn up any trace of the missing men or their kidnapers. However, they reported arresting 12 so-called "extremists" on the plantation, devoted to growing Robusta coffee.

Government sources said the 60-man force sent out to Monserratt from Guayaquill on reports of the kidnaping would remain in the area to search for the missing men.

LEAD CENTERS

Production of lead in the United States centers in Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma. Missouri's lead deposits were discovered in 1720 by two Frenchmen, and the industry was well-developed when the United States bought the Louisiana Territory in 1803.

FINDS OYSTER — Good things come in small packages, and Andree Cronier, 17, didn't have to wait until Christmas. Andree pried open one of the canned Japanese oysters she was enjoying and found a shiny pearl. She intends to have the pearl appraised and maybe made into a ring. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Successful Investing....

Extravagant Claims by Friend Can Be Misleading

Q — I have recently sold two holdings and put the money into Lane Wood Inc. which I'm told will double in a year. Do you think this was a good investment? — H. B.

A — Yes, I do feel that Lane Wood is a good investment on a long-term basis. However, your friend appears to have been overenthusiastic. Because of the many unforseen situations that can disrupt the market, I would, in the future, be wary of anyone who states positively that a stock will double in price in a given length of time. Lane Wood, a Dallas-based company, derives 80 per cent of earnings from sales of mobile homes and 20 per cent from oil and other holdings. Earnings in the last fiscal year, ended April 30, were $1.02 a share, and a comfortable increase is estimated for this year.

There is a sizable — over 20 per cent — dilution factor from conversion of debt and preferrred issues. A recently proposed secondary offering should not be difficult for the market to absorb. Proceeds may be used to acquire additional firms in the mobile home industry.

Negro Boycotters Seeking Mass Arrest

By RICHARD DAW
Associated Press Writer

SWANQUARTER, N.C. (AP) — Negro teen-agers who have been boycotting classes for six weeks have added the chant, "We Want to be Arrested!" to their protest of a Hyde County school integration plan.

An effort to provoke mass arrests Tuesday resulted in the booking of 47 teen-agers on charges of obstructing traffic.

Later, other demonstrators regrouped at the county courthouse at dusk to shout, "We'll be back tomorrow!"

The North Carolina highway patrol boosted its force from 10 to 20 after a demonstration Monday during which police used tear gas to disperse Negro teen-agers from the school superintendent's office in the courthouse.

A 17-year-old girl who fell from a second-story office of the courthouse during Monday's demonstration remained hospitalized with a pelvic injury.

No smoke bombs or tear gas were used by officers during Tuesday's demonstration.

Of those arrested, 10 girls were released on their cognizance for court appearances Dec. 11. The 37 others, including boys and girls, were held under $25 bond each.

"We're going to fill that jail," said James Topping, a field worker for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, in discussing plans to provoke the arrests.

"They can't arrest everybody in Hyde County."

Topping was among leaders of the demonstrations but he was not among those who blocked roadways. He said Negroes would continue the protests "just as long as it takes to get what we want."

What they want, Topping said, is for the county to abandon its federally approved integration plan, which calls for phasing out Hyde's two all-Negro schools and integrating all students into a previously all-white school. The three schools are the only ones in the county and each operates grade one through 12. The first step in the three-year integration plan—integration of grades 1-3—was taken this year.

"They should continue to operate all three schools and put white students into what had been the black schools," Topping said.

About 800 of the county's 850 school age Negro children started a boycott of classes in September to protest the desegregation plan. The county's total school-age population is about 1,400.

Cut-Rate Pay

THIMBU, Bhutan (AP) — King Jigme Dorji Wangchuk of Bhutan is perhaps the world's lowest paid monarch.

The Bhutan national assembly has fixed the king's privy purse at 3,000 rupees ($400) a month —or only 500 rupees ($67) more than what his ministers get.

Wedged between Tibet and India, the 18,000-square-mile Bhutan has a population of 750,000.

The treaty ending the Russo-Japanese War was signed at Portsmouth, N.H., in 1905.

ADMIRING GAZE — Europe's first hippie beauty queen, Holland's Alida Grootenboer, 20, draws admiring gaze from a London policeman while on a tour of the Houses of Parliament. In London to compete in the Miss World contest, Alida charged the beauty pageant's organizers with using "lock and key" to prevent her from blasting their "beauty racket" wide open. She stated that she has been "told what to say, how to act and even locked in (her) room." (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Export Program Reaches Peak; Needs More Men

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The State Commerce Department is stepping up its efforts to get more businessmen and farmers into an export program under which $78 million worth of New York products are being sold overseas.

Neal L. Moylan, newly appointed commerce commissioner, told a news conference Tuesday the department's international commerce program has reached its peak unless there is broader participation.

To spur more of the state's 30,000 business firms and thousands of farmers to join the program, Moylan has arranged a series of workshops and individual consultations described as a "new thrust" toward "closer cooperation at the community

The message is that industry and agriculture in New York can increase profits by shipping their products to markets the department finds for them in the Far East, South America and Europe.

The department seeks especially medium-production manufacturers that do not have export offices in this country.

C-H Files Bond Application

Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation announced today that it had filed with the New York Public Service Commission an application for authority to issue $20,000,000 first mortgage bonds in January 1969 and $26,000,000 unsecured short-term obligations during a period ending June 30, 1970. The mortgage bonds will be issued to refund short-term obligations presently outstanding.

The Company also reported that its construction program for the years 1968-1972 is estimated to cost $121 million, the largest five-year program in its history. The largest single project in this program will be the Company's share, estimated at $34 million, of the cost of a new 1,200,000 kilowatt electric generating station at Roseton, New York, which will be owned by Central Hudson, Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc., and Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation, as tenants in common.

Central Hudson's total financial needs during these years will amount to approximately $100 million, including repayment of notes outstanding at the beginning of 1968 and refunding of mortgage bond maturities in 1970 and the issuance of additional debt obligations, and of preferred and common stock. The present application to the Public Service Commission constitutes the first stage of this financing program.

Want to Get Away

DEER LODGE, Mont. (AP) — The state prison in Deer Lodge recently became the first institution in state history to have an organized library.

More than 2,000 books were sent to the prison by the state library in Helena.

Lene Cooper, an employe of the Helena office, said the most frequent requests from inmates are for travel books.

Christmas Extravaganza: Jaycees Set Two Shows

A Christmas extravaganza in the form of a holiday ballet will again be sponsored this year by the Saugerties Jaycees on Dec. 8.

Two shows at 2 and 6 p m. haveb een scheduled at Saugerties Jaycees on Dec. 8.

Two shows at 2 and 6 p. m. have been scheduled at Saugergerties High School auditorium.

Especially geared for family entertainment, the show will be put on by the Estelle and Alfonso Studio. The "Christmas Story" will feature a kaleidescopic spectacle of what promises to be "a wonderland time" for all.

Tickets are available at P. C. Smith Hardware Store, Saugerties; Langer's Pharmacy, Simmons' Plaza; Kingston Music Centre, Albany Avenue Ext., Kingston; Abrams' Music Store, Wall Street, Kingston., and Schneider's Store in Woodstock.

Due to the tremendous response given last year's production, the Jaycees have scheduled two performances this year and ask that tickets be purchased in advance.

Tickets may also be purchased from Jaycee committeemen: Andrew Fairchok, Clifford Harris, Albert Treu, Theodore Corea, Robert Brandt and Ralph Childers.

A limited number of patron tickets are also available and may be secured from the chairman, Andrew Fairchok.

Anyone interested in sponsoring one or more "less fortunate" youngsters in order that they may view the show, may do so by donating the purchase price of a children's ticket. The Jaycees will plan for their attendance. Albert Treu is in charge of arrangements.

Edwin Mellander Selected by State Orchestra

The Saugerties Central Schools has just been notified of the acceptance of Edwin Mellander to the first violin section of the All State Orchestra.

The All State Orchestra is sponsored by the New York State School Music Association and will perform at the associations convention in Buffalo, Dec. 7.

The 100 piece orchestra is composed of high school juniors and seniors from all over New York State, selected by audition and recommendation of their directors.

Edwin Mellander, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Mellander of Barclay Lane, Saugerties, is concert master of the Saugerties High School Orchestra under the direction of William Wollowitz, a member of the Junior Board of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra, and has performed in several string ensembles in this area. Edwin is a violin student of Frank Mele of Woodstock, and was concert master for the All County High School Orchestra under the sponsorship of the Ulster County Music Educators Association.

Robert H. Palmatier, coordinator of the Music Department of the Saugerties Central Schools, will accompany Edwin to the conference in Buffalo.

Commenting on Mellander's acceptance, Dr. Dexter O. Arnold, superintendent of schools said, "To the best of my knowledge, this is the first time that such an honor has come to Saugerties Schools through one of its music students. Edwin Mellander's talent has been recognized at the state level, a real tribute to his teachers and to Palmatier's leadership in raising the standards and accomplishments of the music department. "Dr. Arnold said he took great pleasure in congratulating "Edwin, his parents and all concerned with the splendid achievement."

Local Association:

Simple Eating Changes Can Aid Heart

Many healthy persons may unknowingly be increasing their risk of heart attack by eating a typical American diet, the Mid-Hudson Heart Association warns. But moderate changes in such a diet can reduce this risk.

One aim should be to cut down on the intake of cholesterol and saturated fats, which contribute to atherosclerosis, a form of hardening of the arteries underlying most heart attacks. At the same time, there are other goals to keep in mind—maintenance of a nutritionally-adequate diet and, through calorie control, remaining at a desirable weight.

To help achieve these aims, the MHHA suggests in today's article those specific foods that should be used more frequently, and others which should be used sparingly, or not at all. Changes in eating habits can be applied to every meal of the day, and in every course of the meal from appetizer to dessert—literally from soup (skimmed of fat) to nuts (which have no cholesterol and are low in saturated fat).

Chicken, turkey, veal and fish are low in saturated fats, and should be used in most of the meat meals during the week. No more than five meals a week should include beef, lamb, pork or ham. At that, the housewife should choose lean cuts of these meats and trim off visible fat before cooking. Bake, broil, roast or stew the meats and discard the liquid fats which cook. certain high-protein vegetables—dried beans and peas, baked beans, lentils—occasionally may be used in place of meat. Three to four ounces of cooked meat or fish (not counting bone or fat) or a similar amount of a high-protein vegetable is recommended as an average serving.

Among the fat-laden foods to be avoided are duck, goose, spareribs, mutton, frankfurters, sausages, fatty hamburgers, bacon and luncheon meats. Cholesterol-rich foods to be restricted in use include egg yolks, the organ meats—liver, kidney and sweetbreads—and the shellfish—crab, lobster, shrimp and clams.

Since liver is very rich in vitamins and iron, it should not be eliminated completely from the diet. A four-ounce serving of liver in a meat meal no more than once a week is permissible. A four-ounce serving of shellfish may be substituted for meat no more than once a week.

Virtually every fresh fruit and vegetable may be used generously and regularly, except for olives and avocados, which are very high in fat calories. The daily intake of margerines and oils should emphasize the polyunsaturated fats, which tend to lower cholesterol levels in the blood.

A note of caution also applies to the use of butter, rolls, commercial biscuits, muffins (but not English muffins), doughnuts, sweet rolls, crackers and commercial mixes containing dried eggs and whole milk, sources of both cholesterol and saturated fats. But skim milk fortified with vitamins A and D, skim milk cheeses, buttermilk and yogurt should be used often.

An explanation of the relationship of diet to heart disease, as well as lists of foods to have, and not to have, recipes and tips on food preparation may be found in two new Heart Association publications. These are "The Way to a Man's Heart", and "Recipes for Fat-Controlled and Low Choleaterol Meals". They are available from Mid-Hudson Heart Association, 72 Main St. Two other publications contain stricter plans for fat-controlled diet and are available for patients on a doctor's prescription.

Soviet Doctor Operates, Removes His Own Appendix

MOSCOW (AP) A Soviet naval doctor on submarine duty in the Pacific decided to remove his own appendix when he realized the sub could not make port in time, Tass has reported.

The Soviet news agency said the doctor-patient, Capt. Alexei Shapovalov, has fully recovered.

The Defense Ministry newspaper, Krasnaya Zveda (Red Star) gave this account of the 2½-hour operation:

Shapovalov was assisted by a senior lieutenant and two sailors who handed him instruments and clamps as he needed them and stanched the blood.

The doctor declined the use of a mirror and instead bent his head forward to see the incision. He probed blindly for the inflamed appendix, and when he thought he had found it asked the lieutenant to describe it for him.

The doctor used novocaine as a local anesthetic and several times had to rest during the operation.

"Perspiration beaded his forehead," Krasnaya Zvezda reported.

The chief of the surgical department of the Soviet military medical faculty, Lt. Col. I. Deribin, said, "Such an operation is very rare. From medical literature we know of only five or six such cases and no previous case in the world in a submarine."

Airport Survey Urged by Harkin For Wawarsing

Wawarsing Supervisor Frank W. Harkin has sent a letter to Superintendent J. Burch McMorran of the New York State Department of Transportation in an effort to get a state survey of airport possibilities in the township.

In the letter, Harkin wrote of the need for a municipal airport for the 30,000 population area.

Such an airport, the supervisor explained, could only be constructed with state and federal funds and the request for a survey is "the first effort in this direction."

Should the survey be carried through, a determination will be made as to whether the township requires such facilities and whether there is room for an airport.

Harkin told The Freeman that t he town board has tentatively pinpointed a town-owned area off Briggs Highway, four miles west of the Village of Ellenville, as a possible site.

The first-term Republican supervisor also said he had spoken to Superintendent McMorran personally and that there was some hope for quick action on the project.

The letter set down the number of business firms in the Wawarsing area and resort industry stretching through Southwestern Ulster and into Sullivan and Orange Counties.

It was the area's Resort Owners Association that first applied organized pressure on the town board to set the machinery to study the airport possibiliies.

Wawarsing Town Sets 1st Session Of Police School

The Special Police School for the Town of Wawarsing opened its first class last night at the Ellenville High School and 22 men turned out to hear Town Attorney Joseph Friedman speak about the legal aspects of the operation.

The volunteer force, according to Wawarsing Supervisor Frank W. Harkin, "can be used at any time in an emergency situation."

Should a special policeman be required to be on active duty for a certain unspecified period of time, the town board will decide on a salary leve

The force is expected to be used only in emergency situations until outside help arrives.

As of now, any uniforms to be bought will be paid for out of the volunteer patrolmen's own pockets.

The next meeting in the training series will be held on Dec. 9 and will deal with observation and partolling and it too will be take place at the Ellenville High School.

Marbletown Zoning to Be Aired

The planning board of the Town of Marbletown will hold an informational meeting on planning and zoning for all interested citizens of the town 8 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 19 at the Elementary School in Stone Ridge.

Dr. Harry Anthony and Robert Kren of the town planners firm of Brown and Anthony as well as members of the local planning board will be on hand to give information, answer questions and listen to comments and suggestions on zoning.

For almost two years members of the planning board have been working on a zoning ordinance which they hope will be adopted by the town board in the near future. The planning board was appointed by the town board eight years ago and two years ago entered into a contract with the planning firm of Brown and Anthony together with the Towns of Rochester, Hurley, Rosendale and the village of Rosendale.

In addition to the assistance of the planning firm the board sought local opinions through a questionnaire and thoroughly studied the area before drawing up the zoning ordinance.

With the findings from all these sources and studies of other communities, the board has come up with an ordinance which members hope will prevent deterioration of properties through zoning for residential and business areas while preserving the charm and rural atmosphere of the town. The ordinance is designed to try and attract shops to serve residents and light industry, encourage farming and provide open space for recreation.

With Marbletown now easily accessable to New York City by Thruway the advent of the Ulster County Community College the ever widening attraction of living in the rural atmosphere and the natural population explosion make the passage of the ordinance more urgent than ever.

Members of the planning board Vernon Barnhart, chairman. Clarence Hansen, Frank Brooks, Stanley Walker, Fred Meyer, Mrs. G. R. Numrich and Mrs. Kenneth Davenport, have been visiting organization meetings throughout the town in recent weeks to explain the proposed ordinance and answer questions.

NEW DELHI (AP) — More murders are committed in New Delhi on Sundays than any other day. An official study showed 34 per cent of the murders in 1963—the first year of the survey—were committed on Sundays.

What Would Happen?

If Tragedy Struck Dick Nixon?

WASHINGTON (AP) — If Richard M. Nixon should die or become incapacitated before Jan. 20, who would be inaugurated as the next president?

Congressional authorities said today the answer depends on whether death or incapacity occurred before or after the presidential electors meet Dec. 16 to cast their ballots.

If it happened after the electors voted, Maryland Gov. Spiro T. Agnew, Nixon's running mate, would become the next president.

But if Nixon died before Dec. 16, the experts said, the electors would be free to vote for anyone they pleased.

Technically there now is no president-elect or vice president-elect despite Nixon's and Agnew's Nov. 5 victory.

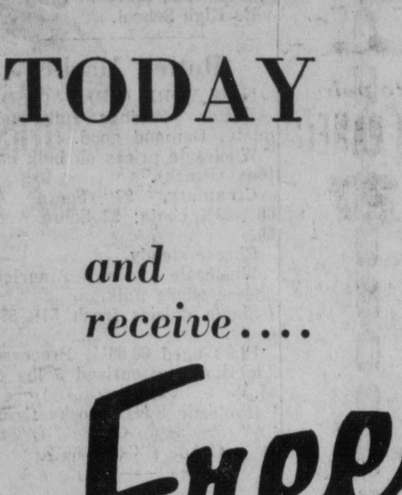

The people voted for electors and the Constitution provides the electors shall meet in their respective state capitals and vote for a president and a vice president.

The only constitutional restriction on the electors is that at least one of the candidates for whom they vote shall not be a resident of the same state as themselves.

CITY OF KINGSTON, N. Y., WEDNESDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 13, 1968 TWENTY-FIVE

Storm Cleanup Commences

By JEAN F. DOLAN

Mop-up operations were the order of the day after the big snows of yesterday.

The unseasonable storm which plagued most of the East Coast dumped six inches of snow in the city and up to 11 inches at Belleayre Ski Center.

High winds held tides at a peak in the Hudson River about 4 p. m. causing flooding in some areas of the Dutchess and Ulster County shorelines.

In Kingston, flooding was reported on the Strand and Beach Road. Barricades were set up on the portions of the Strand in the late afternoon and high flood waters at Kingston Point isolated the city dump area. High water was reported in the Highland area also.

Across the river, water damage was reported at the Rhinecliff Boat Basin and flooding occurred in Poughkeepsie.

Trees Downed

Another storm side effect which caused damage and delay were falling trees and limbs. In the city four trees were downed by the heavy snow and high winds. Three of the trees came down in areas where traffic had to be rerouted. Mountain Road near Eddyville was still closed this morning due to a fallen tree.

In the wake of the unlikely storm, temperatures which hovered between 28 and 32 degrees yesterday are expected to retain their wintery cool. The only bright note in the forcast is the possibility of diminishing winds.

Weary utility and road crews labored long hours throughout the storm to clear throughfares and restore power over a widespread area of Ulster County. As the storm abated at about 8 p. m. most main roads were clear of snow. There were some secondary roads in the county reported slippery this morning and motorists were cautioned to use care in traveling.

All schools were back in operation this morning after yesterday's snow day.

The widespread storm which lashed a 500 mile East Coast area was blamed for 28 deaths in eight states. New York State was hardest hit with 10 storm related deaths.

Homes Evacuated

Along the Atlantic seaboard in New Jersey thousands of persons were forced to evacuate their homes as wind gusts up to 100 miles an hour whipped the ocean over seawalls.

In New York City, UPI reported at least 100 flights grounded at Kennedy International Airport because of slick runways, poor visibility and high winds.

Subways and commuter trains were snarled. The Bronx-Whitestone bridge over the city's East River swayed in the high winds and had to be closed to commuter traffic. Some of the motorist panicked abandoning their cars on the span. The Staten Island Ferry was stranded off shore for approximately three hours at the height of the storm because of wind and waves.

Elsewhere in the state it was the same old snowy, windy story. Some sections of the Adirondacks got more than a foot of snow.

The severe nor'easter headed for its last land punch at New England today after its viciouus foray.

The blustering storm, the third northeaster to hit New England in six days, prompted heavy snow warnings.

Gale driven seas crashing over a seawall caused damage at Kennebunk Beach, Maine. Breakers 20 to 30 feet high tossed boulders and other debris onto King's Highway and onto the lawns of summer cottages.

The winds also threatened the lives of thousands of small dovekies, a species of auk, which were blown ashore on Cape Cod. Naturalists said the birds live in salt water and can't survive ashore.

Roars Up Coast

The storm, spawned in the Gulf of Mexico, roared up the coast from the Carolinas Monday night to lash the shore areas with wind and rain which turned to snow further inland.

Power lines were downed, commuters delayed, bridges closed, streets flooded, schools closed, ferries stranded, boats swamped, trees felled, windows shattered and umbrellas broken.

In eastern Tennessee two 19-year-old boys died of exposure after being lost for 30 hours while on a hunting trip near Great Smoky Mountain National Park. A third youth in the party managed to walk to safety.

Officials said the dead boys were a quarter mile from help when they collapsed in a meadow. John Cutshaw, the survivor, said rain and snow had made it almost impossible to see.

Snow accumulation of up to a foot were reported in the Tennessee Smokies and up to 15 inches in West Virginia's eastern mountains. There was 17 inches at State College, Pa., 14 inches in Flat Rock, N.C., and 13 inches in Frostburg, Md.

Atlanta, Ga., and Washington received a dusting of white. On Wallops Island off the Virginia coast one wind gust was clocked at 100 miles an hour and the wind blew steadily at 80 m.p.h.

At sea the winds whipped up 35 foot waves causing several small vessels in distress.

A fishing boat off Morehead City, N.C. was swamped leaving one man drowned, another missing. Two others swam to shore.

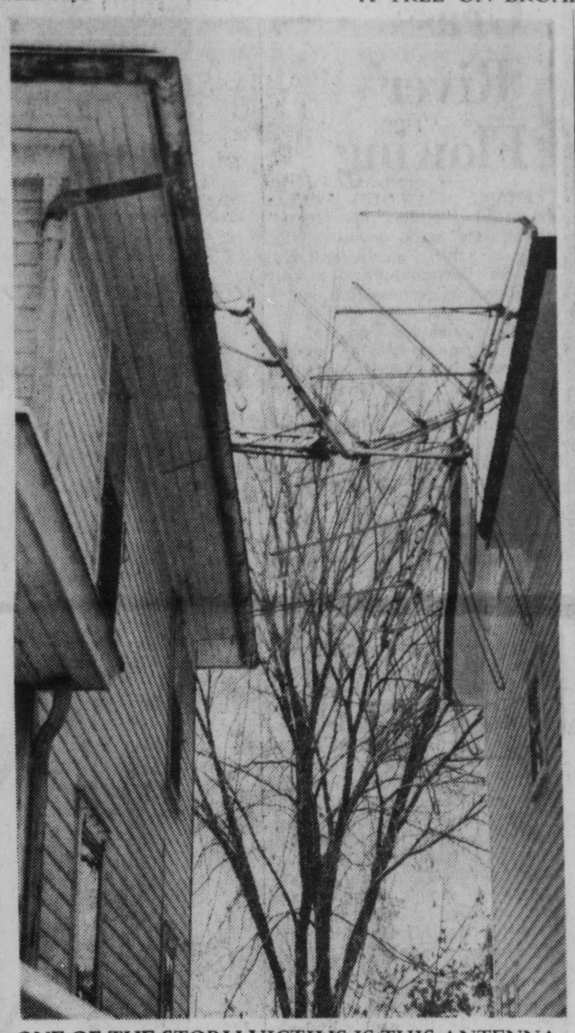

Off Ocracoke, N.C., a trawler's cargo of fish shifted causing her to list and take on water. Coast Guard and Marine helicopters air-lifted 13 men to safety but the master and three crewmen elected to stay aboard.

Tides running 7½ fee above normal broke through a retaining wall in Monmouth County, N.J., forcing 300 persons to evacuate their homes. Most returned by night.

Regardless of what the calendar says — it is winter.

Ex-Leary Disciple Made the Big Switch

DETROIT (AP) — Some 30 times, the young man went on "trips" with LSD.

Then, abruptly, he quit taking the mind-influencing drug that can launch hallucinatory voyages into realms of fantasies, pleasant or terrifying.

He studied, earned a doctorate, and now is an assistant professor of psychology.

From personal experience, from interviews with students who are present or former users of psychoactive drugs, Dr. Allan F. Cohen has offered some observations about how to induce people to stop using such drugs, or to prevent their starting out on the mind-drug road in the first place.

Dr. Cohen, 29, now at John F. Kennedy University in Martinez, Calif., addressed a session of the American Public Health Association.

He had, he said in an interview, been until a few years ago a disciple of Dr. Timothy Leary, a champion of LSD, but turned away because he felt drugs were not the answer, were "a waste of time."

Dr. Cohen, a frequent speaker on college campuses, said "curiosity, social pressure, rebellion against authority, escape from social and emotional problems, desire for 'kicks'—all these are more or less relevent in many cases (of drug use), but add little to our capacity to understand the recency and magnitude of contemporary drug abuse."

A "listening ear" finds also a "theme of disenchantment and alientation," he said.

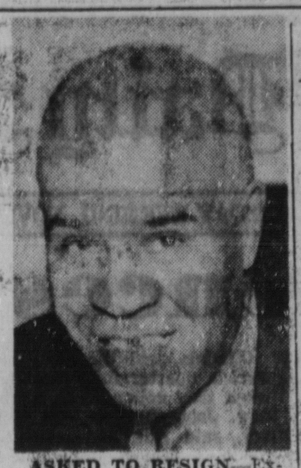

Elements in this disenchantment include some experience of futility, a "charge of social and political hypocrisy reflecting governmental and social policy which seems headed toward more war, hate and injustice," criticism of parents on grounds of "basic lack of understanding and discrimination toward what is really important," and the search to learn, "Who am I?"

To induce drug-users to give them up, Dr. Cohen suggested in part:

A sympathetic attitude—more emphasis on public health rather than legal approaches—stress on reasons behind the use of drugs themselves rather than on the drug themselves—more availability of objective information about drugs—more use of former drug users as communicators—giving greater responsibility to young people in political and social policy planning so that they don't feel like outsiders.

Young people need to be given alternative choices that could reduce a desire for drugs, Dr. Cohen said.

Curing all the ills of society might do it, but more practically, "the fact is that young people will cease using drugs if they are provided with some better nonchemical technique" in their "search for meaningful interpersonal relationships, enduring values, and inner experience."

ASKED TO RESIGN—Executive Director Roy Wilkins of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored Peoples (NAACP) was asked to resign from the organization Tuesday by three NAACP branch presidents in the Los Angeles area.

Army Ready to Scale Down Training Bases

WASHINTON (AP) — The Army appears ready to begin scaling down its huge training bases in the United States as the American buildup in Vietnam nears the 549,500-man ceiling.

The Pentagon acknowledges considering cutbacks in some training centers, but says no decision has been reached.

A reduction in training output will be possible as the Army ceases sending new units to Vietnam and concentrates for the most part on providing replacements for men winding up two and three-year tours.

The Vietnam manpower level, now at approximately 535,000 men, is expected to reach President Johnson's announced ceiling of 549,500 around the end of the year.

The Army Times, an unofficial publication aimed at the soldier audience, reports in its Nov. 13 editions that the Army plans to phase out basic combat training at Ft. Bliss, Tex., and advanced individual training at Ft. Dix, N.J.

The newspaper tied the elimination of basic training at Ft. Bliss to Army plans to cut back its weekly training load from 56 to 53 companies. A company is about 200 men.

The Bliss cutback would go into effect late this month. The phase-out of advanced individual training at Ft. Dix, the Times stated, would come in mid-December.

Bliss would continue providing advanced training for guided missile men.

As part of the readjustment of the training complex, the Pentagon only a few days ago designated Ft. Polk, La., a permanent installation.

Officials said the move makes Polk, which dates back to World War II, eligible for some badly needed construction funds.

The Army has been operating 15 training centers to help meet Vietnam war needs.

Since mid-1965, when the big Vietnam buildup began in earnest, the Army has added over a half-million men to its ranks. The war effort requires 50,000 replacements per month, and other worldwide commitments demand additional forces.

In addition to Forts Dix, Bliss and Polk, the U.S. training centers include Ft. Knox and Ft. Campbell, Ky.; Ft. Jackson, S.C.; Ft. Gordon and Ft. Benning, Ga.; Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.; Ft. Ord, Calif.; Ft. Sill, Okla.; Ft. Sam Houston, Tex. (medics); Ft. McClellan, Alabama (WAC's); Ft. Bragg, N.C.; and Ft. Lewis, Wash.

Grass 'River' Flowing

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The bountiful "River of Grass" flows once again down the flat face of South Florida, and Everglades National Park—a vast primitive wilderness that just a year ago was dying of thirst—has won a new lease on life.

In the spring of 1967, robbed of water by years of drought and man's greed for water, wildlife in the park fought a desperate battle against extinction.

Starving alligators thrashed the waters of fast-vanishing ponds, fighting over the last of the garfish. Rookeries which once teemed with hundreds of thousands of birds were abandoned. Marshes browned by the blazing sun were scourged by fire. Masses of dead fish floated on oxygen-depleted pools, casting a heavy stench of death over America's only great subtropic water park.

Today the picture is bright and hopes are high that the park never again will be forced to the brink of destruction.

The wide, shallow rivers that for centuries poured over the south rim of Lake Okeechobee and drifted slowly down through the sawgrass to the sea runs as it did before. It nourishes thousands of ponds, swales and sloughs filled with fish and crustaceans. On this rich food supply birds, animals and reptiles thrive.

"There is plenty of food now for everything out there," says Francis Nix, the park's hydraulic engineer.

The resurrection of the park was brought about by two months of record-breaking rains, and a discovery that Florida has water enough, if properly controlled, for both man and beast.

In May and June, double the normal amount of rain deluged the Everglades. And since June, gates from the reservoirs of the Central and South Florida Flood Control District have been wide open, pouring excess water southward into the park.

No one can be sure how much permanent damage the park has suffered from drought and man's interference with the balances of nature. When there is plenty of water, wildlife is scattered over the park's 1.5 million acres.

Rare birds like the roseate spoonbill, egret and white heron, which once inhabited the park in large numbers, are making a comeback. It is estimated that 50,000 birds now occupy the mainland area. And, with plenty of food, a good nesting season is in prospect this winter.

The alligator, one of the park's most prized denizens, has been badly hurt, but more by poachers than by drought. The population has been slashed 95 per cent since the 1930s.

Pressure on Congress led to recent approval of a construction program that will improve storage and distribution facilities of the flood control district. It promises the park a minimum of 315,000-acre-feet of water a year through the floodgates. In this wet year, the park already has received 700,000 acrefeet.

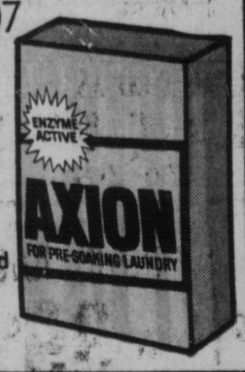

Nix knows that human demands of the future could revive again the cries, "Water for alligators or people?" and "Birds can't vote." These were heard in 1966 when the National Audubon Society and other conservation groups—fighting to stave off a monumental tragedy in the park—argued that enough water could be spared from the reservoirs to save the wildlife.

"My little girl got grass stains on the knees of her new pink stretch slacks. I put them in the washer soaking in Axion overnight. This morning all the stains were gone. I just can't get over it."

Six Webelos Graduate From Cub Scout Pack 9

As the Cubs and their families arrived at the Halloween Pack meeting, dressed in costume, they had to make their entrance through a spider's web. The attendance award was won by Den 4.

The opening ceremony was conducted by the Webelos Den. Cubs participating were David Coisson, Robert Winrow, Richard Rochford and Robert Karaffa.

Cubmaster Ted Blankschan read a Halloween action story with the Cubs and audience acting out the sounds. A parade of all costumed scouts followed with a tape of weird sounds and story being played as the judges picked out the three categories as follows: Richard Hunger as the ugliest, Thomas Hermance as the funniest and James Hadsel as most original.

Awards were: Fred Hutton, Wolf Badge, gold and two silver arrows; Joseph Zehnick, Wolf Badge, gold arrow; Andrew Cherney, Wolf Badge, gold and silver arrow; David Ryan, Wolf Badge, gold arrow; Donald Stoutenburg, gold arrow, Drew Erickson, Harry Joy, Kevin Mc Grane, David Ryan, Donald Stoutenburgh received one-year pins; John McGrane, two-year pin.

A recruiter patch was given to Russell Mottsey for recruiting Michael Mottsey. Also to Thomas Wolf for recruiting Jeffrey McGargee. Thomas Krause was given a Webelos Denner Badge and Jeffrey Lukas was made assistant denner in the Webelos Den.

Webelos activity badges were presented to the following: Athlete Jeffrey Lukas, Robert Winrow, Thomas Hermance, Albert Policastro and Thomas Loughlin; Sportsman, Russell Mottsey; Showman, Richard Rochford; Aquanaut, John McGrane, Russell Mottsey; Artist, Thomas Krause.

A Webelos induction ceremony was held for Thomas Wolf. He was given his Scout handbook and Webelos shoulder patch.

Cubmaster Blankschan held a Webelos graduation ceremony for the following: Richard Rochford, John McGrane, David Coissons, John Van Brink, Robert Karaffa, and Robert Winrow. They and their parents were congratulated upon receiving the highest rank in Cubbing. The Webelos badge and graduation certificate was presented to each Cub and a miniature Webelos pin to each mother. The Webelos Scouts were then introduced to Scoutmaster William Daum, who removed their Cub neckerchief and placed a Boy Scout neckerchief around their necks. He welcomed each Scout and parent into Troop 9.

Following the awards, games were played and refreshments were served by Den 1.

Troop 4 Reports On Weekend At Scout Camp

Boy Scouts of Troop 4 spent the past weekend camping at the Rip Van Winkle Council Camp, Camp Tri-Mount. During two nights and two days of camping the Scouts concentrated on cooking, tracking, trailing, and stalking.

At the campfire on the first night, initiation ceremonies were conducted for Scouts James Brown, Thomas Lonergan, and William Hanrahan. During the second day, a hike to Thomas Cove was completed. The highlight of the trip occurred during evening meal preparation when Senior Patrol Leader John Economos discovered an eight-inch Horsehair worm in a water container. This type of worm derives its name from an old folk story which led listeners to believe that a hair from a horses tail comes to life if it drops in the horses watering trough. The technical name of the worm was obtained from Kent Reeves, director of the State University College at New Paltz Camp near the Ashokan Dam.

William Hayman, assistant patrol leader of Fox Patrol offered to prepare a report for a later troop meeting and is trying to keep the worm alive. The Scouts were accompanied on their trip by L. Van Porter, committee chairman of the troop committee.

Scout Pack 16 Slates Social

Cub Scouts in Marbletown Pack 16 are sponsoring a penny social Friday. The doors of the American Legion Hall in Stone Ridge will open at 7:30 p.m. The Cub Scouts have collected a wide and interesting assortment of items, and many local merchants have donated items. Three dens are providing refreshments for all who attend. The penny social which provides funds for the winter group activities of the Pack is open to the public.

A short meeting will be held at which time the following boys will be initiated into the Pack: Bruce Davenport, Frank and Larry Hasenflue, Robert Haynes, Shawn Mazzuca, and Mark Steiner. James Hopkins has been elected denner of Den 4, and will receive his denner stripes.

Any boy between the age of 8 and 11 or in the third grade, who resides in the Town of Marbletown, may join Pack 16 by coming to the penny social, or any future pack meeting, with a parent. Applications to join will be available at all pack meetings.

Election Ethics Changing, Subtle Smears Common

WASHINGTON (AP)—The director of the Fair Campaign Practices Committee says old-style dirty politics is giving way to more subtle smears "in the form of Madison Avenue tactics."

These are the tactics, Samuel J. Archibald said Tuesday, that were "formerly used to sell under arm deodorant."

Despite the emergence of more sophisticated smears, Archibald told reporters the 1968 election was the cleanest in years.

This year, there were 62 complaints of code violations compared to 68 in 1966 and 98 in the last presidential election year of 1964.

Archibald said nine complaints concerned the presidential race, compared to 35 in 1964.

Archibald said he felt his complaints, going to the opposite party for comment and when a file is complete then informing the news media of all communications—had worked superbly.

"All we are doing is getting both sides to the public," Archibald says. "Sometimes we have to go back to each party several times to get all the issues answered. But we never make judgments."

In 1966, he said, 65 per cent of the "candidates involved in dirty politics lost their election." He hasn't compiled a win-loss record for this year.

Only one set of candidates took advantage of an arbitration panel provided for the first time this year through a Ford Foundation grant.

The case involved an accusation in Sacramento, Calif., by Republican Elmore J. Duffy that Democrat Rep. John E. Moss was politically dishonest. Duffy had made the charge in radio advertisements.

After a day's hearing the arbitrators ruled the code had been violated because Duffy was unable to support the charge. Moss won re-election.

The most heat was generated by a Republican television commercial portraying a cheerful Hubert H. Humphrey against a backdrop of war, poverty and general misery.

The ad was withdrawn after one showing, after Archibald asked for explanations and many individuals complained to the network.

One GOP complaint was against George Ball's criticism of Richard Nixon and Spiro T. Agnew in a news conference after he resigned as ambassador to the United Nations to campaign for Humphrey.

Ball did not answer Archibald's first two requests for a response the Republican complaint but after a formal prodding letter in which Archibald said the file would soon be opened to reporters, Ball elaborated for 35 pages about his reasons.

Study Shows 'Prominent' Men Tend to Outlive Average Person

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Men who become prominent in their careers tend to outlive the average man, a statistical study suggests.

Scientists and clergymen come off best in this particular longevity measurement.

"Men of letters" rank lowest on this same totem pole, but still ahead of average.

In this subgrouping, "correspondents and editors" seem to be outlived by their readers by a large margin.

The longevity study was described Wednesday to the American Public Health Association b. Jules V. Quint and Bianca R. Cody, statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., New York City.

Using the 1950-51 edition of "Who's Who in America" they selected a sample of 6,329 distinguished professional and business men.

They checked how many had died and when during the next 12 years, and compared this with death rates among white men in the general population who had been of the same ages back in 1950.

Overall, they said, the mortality of "Who's Who" men who were over age 45 in 1950 was 30 per cent less than that of the general population.

The greatest difference was found between ages 50 and 59. "This contradicts the belief in some quarters that the mercilessness with which men drive themselves during their forties to outstanding positions in their careers is reflected in broken health when they are in their fifties," they said.

They found these differences in longevity by professions:

Businessmen: Average mortality 29 per cent less than that of the general population. Mortality about the same as all men in the total "Who's Who" sample.

Educators: Average mortality 38 per cent under the general, and 10 per cent under the same.

Lawyers and judges: 25 per cent under the general, and about the same as in the sample.

Men of letters: 10 per cent under the general, but 30 per cent higher than the entire professional sample.

Men of letters included authors, writers, critics, historians, editors, correspondents and journalists.

The death rate for "correspondents and journalists" alone, was more than 30 per cent above the general population, and double the rate in the sample.

Physicians and surgeons: 22 per cent under the general population and 10 per cent above sample.

Church officials and clergymen: 38 per cent under the general population and 13 per cent under the sample.

Scientists: 45 per cent under the general population and 21 per cent under the sample.

Causes of death were not available for analysis, the report said, nor were theories offered as to why prominent persons might live longer.

A MONARCH'S WAVE — England's Queen Elizabeth II waves to cheering crowd from open limousine as motorcade travels through downtown Santiago following her arrival. Storage of Vital Body Organs Aids Transplantation Cases

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Storage of vital body parts is buying time and hope for potential organ transplant patients, putting them within reach of the life-saving surgery no matter where they are.

A few hours, sometimes just minutes, often means the difference between success and failure in transplantation.

Each second's delay in restoring blood and oxygen to a donor heart or liver or kidney means a smaller chance of success.

In specific terms, this means that people like Eddie Miller, 45, a construction worker from West Helena, Ark., had time to get to Denver for a liver transplant when a donor organ became available. His own liver was destroyed by cancer.

He is among seven survivors of liver transplants in Denver, including a 3-year-old northern California girl who underwent the operation Monday.

Others have been flown here on short notice for kidney or liver transplants from homes as far distant as Florida and New York and Honolulu.

Dozens of others, from all parts of the nation, are on a waiting list for kidney and liver transplant here. Perhaps 75 persons are in line for heart transplants here and in such centers as Houston, Tex.; Palo Alto, Calif., and Richmond, Va.

Heart-lung machines have been used to keep a heart going and the lungs breathing after the donor patient has died, while the recipient is prepared for the transplant.

Dr. Lawrence Brettschneider and other surgeons here developed a low temperature, oxygen pressurized chamber to store livers for several hours.

Dr. F. O. Belzer of the University of California devised a similar machine which has stored kidneys up to 17 hours before successful implantation.

These storage techniques are steps toward organ "banks" which could provide a pool of donor organs, ready for long-distance tissue-matching and transport to the donor who needs one.

Set Meeting, Hearing Dates In Gardiner

The Citizens Committee of the Town of Gardiner is scheduled to meet Nov. 20 for a 7:30 p. m. meeting on Nov. 20 at the Gardiner Fire House.

According to Supervisor George Majestic, the purpose of the meeting is to explore certain future projections for the township.

Expected to be explored will be zoning, planning, and sub division regulations.

Supervisor Majestic also said that a public hearing was slated for Nov. 27, also at 7:30 p. m. in the fire house.

The Nov. 27 hearing would deal with four aspects of the town's future including a "stop gap ordinance" in anticipation of zoning and planning, highway specifications, sub-division regulations, and an ammendment to the existing trailer ordinance.

Majestic explained that the amendment would attempt to have trailer owners put skirts around the bottoms of their mobile homes should the trailers be stationed at any one camp location for a period of six months or more.

At the Citizens Committee meeting on Nov. 20, area residents will be presented with questionaires exploring the varied planning possibilities.

Residents will also receive the questionaire with their tax bills, scheduled to be mailed out Jan. 1.

Progress Noted For Ellenville Flood Talks

Ellenville Mayor Eugene Glusker told The Freeman late Monday that there was progress towards the setting up of a joint meeting between federal, state, and local governmental agencies on the village's flood control project.

At a recent village Board meeting, Mayor Glusker and members of the board scored the Ulster County Legislature for ignoring repeated requests for such a joint conclave.

The mayor said that it was "absolutely essential" for the county to send a representative to the meeting and Frank L. Miller, Legislator from Hurley and chairman of the legislature's Bridge and Highway Committee, was cited for his alleged failure to show interest in the Ellenville project.

Late Monday, however, Mayor Glusker appeared certain that a meeting would be held within the month.

The county owns the Cape Avenue Bridge in the village. The span, slated for demolition, is located within the flood project area, and it is this fact that reportedly makes county participation in the talks necessary.

Agencies scheduled to participate in the two and one-half million dollar project talks are the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the Flood Control Division of the New York State Department of Conservation, the Ulster County Legislature, the Town of Wawarsing and the Village of Ellenville.

Grape Crop Shows Increase, But Still Under '62-'66 Mark

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's grape crop was estimated Tuesday at 3,748,000 tons, 14 per cent higher than last year but six per cent under the 1962-66 average.

The Agriculture Department said in its monthly crop report that reduced expectations in New York, Michigan, and Washington accounted for a slight drop from the October prediction.

California's raisin variety crop was estimated at 2,050,000 tons, 27 per cent higher than last year but four per cent below content was found in many cases.

Production of California wine grapes was estimated at 640,000 tons, 27 per cent higher than last year but three per cent below average.

Table variety grapes were expected to total 480,000 tons, 10 per cent more than last year but 18 per cent under average.

The Washington crop was "not quite up to earlier expectations," the department said, but size and quality were good and sugar content high.

The berry and cluster size of the New York harvest were below normal, but sugar content was high, it was said.

Pennsylvania's Concord crop was off to a late start and harvest began almost two weeks behind usual schedule, the department said. Sugar content was reported high.

Fair to good quality and high sugar content was reported for the Ohio crop.

Indict Draft Card Burner

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — The federal grand jury here indicted a Cornell University student Tuesday on charges of burning a draft card during anti-war demonstrations outside Federal Court last month.

Alan S. Plofsky, 19, of White Plains, N. Y., was charged with burning a draft card during the mass demonstrations Oct. 9.

The alleged incident occurred as nine war protestors went on trial in U.S. District Court for burning draft board records taken from the Selective Service center in Catonsville, Md., last May.

One of the defendants was the Rev. Daniel Berrigan, 47, a Catholic chaplain at Cornell.

Alan I. Baron, assistant U.S. attorney, said Plofsky would be released on his own recognizance after being served a warrant. Baron said arraignment has been set for Nov. 22.

Plane Crashes

MANILA (UPI)—The nose of a huge C124 Globemaster cargo plane fell at Clark Air Force Base 60 miles north of Manila today, killing a U.S. airman from McChord AFB, Tacoma, Wash., the U.S. Information Serices (USIS) said. The identity of the airman was withheld pending notification of relatives.

Three Killed, Two Wounded In Rights Office

BOSTON (UPI)—A blind man and two companions were shot to death early today in the office of a Negro civil rights organization. Two other men were wounded.

Four of the victims were found on the floor of a rear room of the New England Grass Roots Organization (NEGRO) in the city's Roxbury area, a predominantly Negro ghetto section. One of the men lay on the sidewalk in front of the office, a former sandwich shop.

All of the men were Negroes. Police identified one of the dead as Guido St. Laurent, a blind man whose large black seeing eye dog was still tied up in the wood-panelled office when police arrived in response to a telephone call.

The two wounded, who were taken to emergency surgery at Boston City Hospital, were identified as David Hicks and Fred Rose. Their conditions were not know immediately.

Police said the men appeared to have been shot at close range. Authorities said the door to the office was protected by an electronic eye, and speculated the men could not have been taken by surprise.

Fact Sheet Given on Diabetes for Detection Week

The Ulster County Chapter of the American Diabetes Association has released the following fact sheet on diabetes in connection with the observance of Diabetes Detection Week scheduled Nov. 17-23:

Free diabetes testing services will be available during that week at Retron Manufacturing, Ferroxcube, in the lobby of the Ulster County Office Building and the First Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Chronic Condition

Diabetes is a chronic condition which develops when the body is unable to make use of certain foods, especially sugars and starches (carbohydrates). It may be fatal, although when properly treated and brought to control, it interferes very little with normal life and activity.

Common symptoms of diabetes are extreme thirst, frequent urination, constant hunger, loss of weight, itching, easy tiring, changes in vision, and slow healing of cuts and scratches. However, diabetes may be present without any obvious symptoms at all.

The most likely targets are persons related to diabetics, overweight and past 45 years of age. In one study, six out of seven people whose diabetes were discovered after the age of 45 had been overweight.

Though it is commonest in the middle age, diabetes can develop at any time in life. Cases hve been known in a nine-day-old-boy and in a 99-year old woman.

Treatment

Once discovered, diabetes can be controlled by diet, exercise and when necessary, insulin or one of the oral compounds that reduce blood sugar. A planned diet is basic to successful control of diabetes.

Neglect of diabetes may lead to an increased risk of coronary diaease, hardening of the arteries, cerebral hemorrhage, kidney disease, failing eyesight, gangrene and diabetic coma.

The earlier diabetes is discovered the more easily it can be controlled. Therefore a year-round Diabetes Detection Drive—highlighted by Diabetes Week, Nov. 17-23 in 1968—is sponsored nationwide by the American Diabetes Association and more than 900 state and county Medical Societies. During Diabetes Week, diabetes detection tests are given in hundreds of communities and everyone is urged to be tested.

The goal is to find and help as many as possible of the more than 1,600,000 undetected diabetic men, women and children, and at the same time to remind the American Public of the early indications of diabetes and the importance of early detection and proper control.

In a survey made from July 1964 to June 1065 the Bureau of the Census found there were then 2,385,000 people 1/ in the United States in whom a diagnosis of diabetes had been established. This was 1.3 per cent of the total population. On the basis of an estimated total population of 200,000,000 as of July 31, 1967, the following figures become evident:

Known diabetics in U.S. Population	2,600,000
Unknown diabetics	1,600,000 1/ 2/
Total diabetics	4,200,000
Additional potential diabetics	5,600,000 2/
Actual and potential	9,800,000

In reviewing prevalence data the Committee on Public Education and Detection of the American Diabetes Association in June of 1968 concluded that the above estimates are minimal and the prevalence may actually be considerably greater. Thus one person in 20 is either an actual or a potential diabetic.

Heredity and Diabetes

Diabetes is known to "run in families." The American Diabetes Association has estimated that as many as 50,000,000 or one out of four people may be "carriers"—that is, they may transmit diabetes to their offspring though most of the carriers will not develop diabetes themselves. Analysis of the Census survey by the National Center for Health Statistics 1/ confirmed that diabetes does irdeed "run in families" but that it may skip a generation or more. In only one per cent of the diabetic population had diabetes occurred in three successive generations. One out of six had diabetic mothers and one out of 12 had diabetic fathers. But a majority knew of at least one diabetic parent or grandparent. One out of four of those with brothers or sisters knew of at least one brother or sister who also had diabetes.

According to the same study, nearly seven out of ten known diabetics had discovered their diabetes when they were 45 years of age or older. Nearly one-half discovered it between 45 and 64 years of age. In one out of five, diabetes was discovered at 65 years or older, and in slightly less than 22 per cent it appeared between the ages of 25 years and 44 years. In only eight out of a hundred was diabetes discovered at an age of less than 25 years.

Disarmament Debate in U.N. Is Stalemated

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly's annual disarmament debate appeared today to be stalemated from the start as Soviet-American nuclear talks awaited the change in U.S. presidents and a calmer atmosphere abroad.

Delegates felt that not much could be accomplished toward disarmament in view of the uncertain status of the Vietnam peace talks in Paris, the impending changeover in Washington and indications of an arms buildup among NATO members alarmed by the Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia.

The Soviet Union made plain it holds virtually no hope of talks with the United States at this stage. Speaking Tuesday at the opening of the arms debate in the assembly's main political committee, Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik made a perfunctory bid for opening negotiations between his government and Washington. Then he proposed that the assembly send the entire arms question back to the 17-nation disarmament committee in Geneva.

FIRE ON OCEAN LINER — The ocean liner Oceanic, one of the largest passenger vessels in the world, reported a fire in its engine room and said it was turning around east of Jacksonville, Fla. and heading back to New York. A Coast Guard spokesman said the Oceanic, which was enroute to Nassau, Bahamas, when the fire broke out, had not requested any assistance. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Sandwiches With Heroin; Man Arrested

CHICAGO (AP) — A counter man at a Near North Side restaurant was slated to appear in narcotics court today charged with serving up heroin stuffed sandwiches to customers who knew the code words.

Carlos Figera-Diaz, 21, of Chicago was arrested by police Tuesday night after a narcotics addict reportedly told detectives Diaz was slipping aluminum foil packages of the drug into certain "sandwiches".

Police said under the system used by Diaz, a narcotics addict would get varying amounts of heroin depending upon what kind of sandwich he ordered.

Prices varied from $20 to $60 depending on the type of "sandwich" ordered and police estimated Diaz did $2,000 worth of business a day.

Police found heroin valued at $5,000 hidden behind a false ceiling in the restaurant.

State Apple Output

WASHINGTON (AP) — New York is expected to produce 20 million bushels of apples this year, the Agriculture Department says.

The federal agency made the estimate Tuesday in a report on harvests.

Other crop estimates in the state included:

Dry beans — 1,150 pounds an acre and production of 1,070,000 hundredweight.

Fall crop potatoes — 246 hundredweight an acre and production of 17,045,000 hundredweight.

Auto Sales Show Increase This Month

DETROIT (AP) — U.S. auto sales moved up 14 per cent during the first 10 days of November compared with the similar period last year, despite a 10 per cent slip in sales by the industry giant, General Motors.

The four major U.S. automakers-GM, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors-sold 209,504 cars during the eight-selling-day period this year for a daily rate of sale of 26,188. That compared to last year's figure of 206,810 over nine selling days for a daily rate of 22,979.

General Motors, which has been plagued by labor troubles —a 13-day strike at its Buick plant in Flint, Mich., and an unresolved Fleetwood Fisher Body plant strike which started Nov. 4 in Detroit—sold 166,102 cars during this year's period.

Ford, on the other hand, showed a 227 per cent increase over sales from Nov. 1-10 last year, when Ford was in the middle of a long strike.

Ford sales during this year's early November period were 55,139 compared with 18,983 last year.

Chrysler also exprienced a sales drop; 32,515 sales during the period this year for a daily sales rate 6 per cent lower than last year's, when 38,906 cars were sold.

American Motors, lagging far behind its big brothers, showed an increase from 5,702 to 5,748.

For the year to date, the auto industry has sold 7,392,342 passenger cars, compared with 6,542,217 sold by the same time last year.

General Motors was far ahead of the pack, with 3.84 million units sold, followed by Ford, 1.99 million, Chrysler, 1.3 million, and AMC, under 228,000.

Ray's Lawyer Turns to Defense of Case

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — With one big item accomplished —delay of the trial—James Earl Ray's new lawyer turned today to preparing a defense for the man accused of assassinating Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Percy Foreman, the famed Texas criminal lawyer who took the case Sunday, went into court Tuesday, the day Ray's trial was to begin, and got a delay until March 3.

Judge W. Preston Battle granted the postponement and agreed to enter Foreman as Ray's attorney of record to replace former Birmingham, Ala., Mayor Arthur J. Hanes, who was fired abruptly the same night Foreman was hired.

Foreman said he planned to stay on here for a few days to confer with local bar association leaders to get help in securing a Tennessee lawyer as associate counsel.

Deputy Injured

Cpl. John Touey of the County Sheriff's Department is in Kingston Hospital today following a mishap Tuesday night when two fingers of his left hand were injured when caught in a snowblower. A blotter notation at the Sheriff's Office noted he was clearing snow from the sidewalk and driveway of his Garden Street residents when the mishap occurred.

Greek Justice

SALONIKA, Greece (UPI)--A Greek military court Tuesday night convicted six men of trying to overthrow the military regime and sentence them to prison terms of up to 16½ years.

The six were accused of forming an organization called "Democratic Defense." They testified in court they were "trying to restore sound democracy."

Mafia Arrested

ENNA, Sicily (UPI)—Five men accused of belonging to the Mafia have been arrested and charged with stealing and driving over a cliff 146 sheep in retaliation against a shepherd who refused to pay them protection money, police said Tuesday.

HAPPY TIMES — Suzi Williams of North Haven, Conn., is enjoying the early skiing at Mt. Snow. A record early winter snowfall stranded 3,000 skiers this week after state police closed highways in and out of the resort valley until highway crews could open the roads. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Dr. Holcomb to Head Yule Seals Drive Again

DR. F. W. HOLCOMB SR.

Dr. Frederic W. Holcomb Sr., long prominent in local and state level medical circles, and one of the areas outstanding citizens, has been named honorary chairman of the 1968 Ulster County Christmas Seal Campaign. He will be leading this 62nd Annual area TB-RD Christmas Seal fund raising program for the 3rd consecutive year.

The official Ulster County opening of the Christmas Seal Campaign under Dr. Holcomb's leadership will take place Nov. 19 at the 1968 Christmas Seal Dinner in the Crystal Room of the Governor Clinton Hotel.

"Dr. Holcomb's leadership had been vital to our Association during most of its remarkable productive years; years that have left a deep and serious impression on the health of our Ulster County area, "noted Saugerties banker John M. Robbins, Association President in announcing Dr. Holcomb's chairmanship "He has been one of our greatest professional forces in tuberculosis and respiratory disease work, as well as a leading Ulster County figure in medical and public health in Ulster County. Now again, as our 1968 Christmas Seal Chairman, his leadership renews the deep sense of commitment of everyone of our directors, township Christmas Seal and program chairmen; wide-spread and active volunteer staff and our headquarter's force in our Ulster County TB-RD chest program.

Township Chairmen

Throughout the county, township chairmen work actively in program work as required, and will be functioning in Christmas Seal Campaign work under the leadership of Dr. Holcomb focused from Nov. 15 through Dec. 31. This force of township chairmen include: Esopus, Mrs Chester C. DuMond; Gardiner, Mrs. Clifford Hoppenstedt; Hardenburgh, Mrs. Claude S. Haynes; Hurley, Mrs. Claude G. Palen and Mrs. Charles T. Guadangnola; Lloyd, Mrs. John F. Mack; Marbletown, Mrs. Ross K. Osterhoudt; Marlboro, Gus J. Cutrone; New Paltz, a new chairman this year, Mrs. Leon Tantillo of 11 S. Oakwood Terrace; Olive, Mrs. Edwin Aspinall; Plattekill, Mrs. Delfin Bilboa and Mrs. Ronald A. Wager; Rochester, Percy Gazley; Rosendale, Mrs. Otto Mollenhauer; Saugerties, Mrs. Addison W. Burch; Shandaken, Mrs. Edward Cange; Shawangunk, Mrs. George W. Brach; Ulster; Mrs. Edmund Frawley; Wawarsing, Mrs. A. J. Anderson and Mrs. Eugene E. Slater.

TB Health Leader

Active for over 37 years on the Board of the 60 year old Ulster County TB Association, Dr. Holcomb has been one of the principal forces in Association and County TB and Health work. He served 12 outstanding years as president of the agency and now serves as president emeritus and life-long member of its executive committee, both honors established in 1965. At that time the Association gave a special tribute dinner for Dr. Holcomb at the Governor Clinton Hotel which featured highlights of his exceptional career in medicine and community health.

The Ulster County Christmas Seal Chairman, as a medical man, has been recognized as one of the leading professional TB and Chest workers, greatly influencing the early and difficult days of TB Case-Finding and Control, broadened now too, in the more recent and enormously and increasing respiratory diseases, including emphysema and chronic bronchitis. Dr. Holcomb was for many years medical director of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital, Golden Hill, now the Ulster County Infirmary Annex. He also has served many years with the Ulster County TB groups State Affiliate, the New York State TB-RD Association, active on key organizational and medical program committees of the State Association, he has served several terms as a member of its Board of Directors and as a Member-at-Large.

In medical memberships, Dr. Holcomb served with distinction in the program of the New York State Medical Society, was speaker of its House of Delegates, and received the Society's Scroll for Service and the President's Citation presented at its House of Delegates. He is a Fellow of the American College of Chest Physicians; the American College of Physicians, the New York Academy of Medicine and is a member of the American Medical Society, and is a past president of the Medical Society of the County of Ulster. A trustee of the Kingston Savings Bank, his public, civic and professional services have been recognized and appreciated also through numerous tributes and awards.

A Major Challenge

"The work toward the elimination of tuberculosis as a continuing threat to our people, and particularly to our youth and children has become even more difficult, and must have our continued unabated effort even while we strive to bring the respiratory diseases under control," the Christmas Seal Chairman noted in accepting appointment to the Ulster County campaign post. "Too often, too many of our average citizens little realize the major challenge this work represents, nor the great total effort required to deal with this disabling range of chest diseases."

"Our TB-RD work locally is vital to us and is an important part of the total national effort. Some 560,000 Americans are directly affected by tuberculosis: 90,000 with known active cases, 230,000 recent sufferers who might relapse and another 240,000 TB contacts with active, infectious cases. Last year about 7,000 people died of TB, and in about one-fourth of these the disease was not found until death."

In serious concern about the other respiratory diseases Dr. Holcomb added: "Millions of Americans suffer from one or more of these chronic diseases, a staggering health picture. Over 15 million are reported with asthma or hay fever or both; over 16 million have chronic sinusitus; 4 million have chronic bronchitis. Most disastrous of these diseases, emphysema, is second among disabilities for which workers reciving Social Security benefits and is rising steadily and rapidly. These chronic respiratory diseases are a direct or aiding cause of about 88,000 deaths a year."

"Each of us must work for and support TB-RD Christmas Seal program to check these diseases here in Ulster County" Dr. Holcomb concluded. I commend all of our hard working Christmas Seal volunteer staff who already have given long hours of effective effort to the establishment of our 1968 Christmas Seal campaign." Noting that the Christmas Seals are going into the mail now, he urged everyone of our Ulster County citizens to give their much needed individual contribution to Christmas Seals, "thus joining with us all in helping to improve our knowledge, to find better treatment and to spare further suffering, disability and too often, unnecessary death."

The Days of Line Voting Are Over

By KIRTLAND I. KING

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)— New Yorkers walk into a voting booth with the skill of a concert pianist.

Since 1936, when the voting machine was formally put into use, the state's voters have learned to ballot with ease. They pick and choose at will and the results of the Nov. 5 election prove so-called "line" voting is a thing of the past.

"The voters seem to have no trouble whatsoever picking out the candidates they want to vote for," one election official said. "In the old days, a voter hesitated to leave a line once he started. He was afraid to skip around."

The amazing thing about it, the election official said, was the rapidity with which the voters split their tickets. As an example, one district voted at the rate of two-a-minute and, when the final results came, no two candidates had identical totals.

In Albany County, where Republicans scored heavily in local contests, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey piled up a plurality of more than 25,000 votes and Sen. Jacob K. Javits, Republican, had a 1,300 - vote margin.

Winning GOP candidates for the legislature and the district attorney's office had pluralities of better than 8,000. The Democratic candidate for county treasurer won by a similar edge.

Onondaga County saw vote-splitting in all races.

The Nixon-Agnew ticket won by 11,000, yet Rep. James Hanley, Democrat, was returned to the House by a substantial margin.

The race for the U.S. Senate seat held by Javits was a classic example of how the voter jumps around. Javits took Onondaga County by 11,000 votes and Democrat Paul O'Dwyer ran second. But, James Buckley, the Conservative candidate, polled 48,000 votes.

Erie County voters had their way, too. They gave Humphrey a margin of 81,000 over Richard M. Nixon. But, at the same time, George C. Wallace, the Courage party candidate, received more than 32,000 votes.

Along the Mohawk Valley, only one Republican legislator went under. He was veteran Assemblyman Donald Campbell of Amsterdam.

A First in Britain, Two Cabinet Women

LONDON (UPI)—If Britain ever accepted the idea of a woman prime minister, Judith Hart would have a good chance of gaining the post.

For a woman who has been nine years in Parliament, she has done remarkably well. In October, Prime Minister Harold Wilson made her a member of his cabinet, the inner circle of power in Government.

Thus, for the first time Britain has two women cabinet ministers, appropriately in the 50th anniversary year of votes for women. The other is the redoubtable Barbara Castle, Secretary of State for Employment and Productivity.

Mrs. Castle is the more experienced politician but, looking into the future, Mrs. Hart has the advantage of living 13 years the younger.

Mrs. Hart has become a cabinet member at 44 with the title of Paymaster-General, a misleading one because the duties of paying anyone long since have passed to the administrative departments.

Watchdog

Paymaster-Generals do what the Prime Minister briefs them to do. Mrs. Hart's predecessor, George Wigg, had a brief so vague that it produced endliess comic questions in Parliament. In fact, he was Prime Minister Harold Wilson's watchdog on security.

Mrs. Hart's brief is different but equally vague and, if carried to its fullest extent, probably would drive her to nervous exhaustion from overwork.

She is supposed to look into the problems of youth, decentralization, nationalism, forward planning, greater participation of the individual in government, and internal government publicity.

Wilson appears to have two particular aims in mind—to give her cabinet experience with a view to bigger things; to see if she can think up some attractions for the three million potential voters aged 18 to 21 who will get the vote at the next general election because the government plans to lower the voting age.

She will be very much under the Wilson eye because she will be working out of his office, Number 10 Downing Street. The Paymaster-General has no department to go with the title. This has pitfalls because the ministers with departments object to any infringement on their territory.

Not Well Known

Mrs. Hart's is not a well known name in Britain. She has not chosen to seek publicity and her posts in government have rarely attracted it.

Wilson has a high opinion of her and she got a job as soon as the Labor Party took office in 1964. She started as Joint Parliamentary Under-Secretary at the Scottish Office, then Minister of State at the Commonwealth Office, and last year became Minister of Social Security, a post which disappeared last summer in a merger with the Health Ministry.

She gained brief limelight at the Commonwealth Office through a mission of the type normally given to a man. Wilson sent her to Zambia to try to placate President Kenneth Kaunda, angered at British handling of Rhodesia.

At the Social Security Ministry she won standing as an able administrator of a big department.

Mrs. Hart was born Sept. 18, 1924, daughter of linotype operator Harry Ridehalgh who had no great interest in politics. She went to a local school at Clitheroe in North-West England, then on to the London School of Economics (LSE) for a first class honors degree in sociology. She is the only highly qualified sociologist in the cabinet.

She married scientist Anthony Hart the year after she got her degree and has two student sons, Stephen, 20, and Richard, 16.

The LSE has a strong left-wing contingent and Mrs. Hart carried on those views for some time. She opposed the American Polaris submarine base at the Holy Loch in Scotland, marched to ban the bomb, led a rent strike and belonged to organizations on the left. But as she has grown in political stature, so she has moved further and further away from the left.

She talks of government in terms of power and seems all set for higher office, especially now that her children are growing up.

"I stopped working when my first child was born not out of any sense of virtue but because I couldn't bear for someone else to bring up my tiny children," she says.

"Then I went back to part-time sociology and part-time politics and it wasn't until I was offered the Lanark seat that I had to choose which way I wanted to go."

She won entry to Parliament through Lanark in 1959. Less than 10 years later she has a cabinet post with a salary of 8,500 pounds ($20,400) dollars a year. Would she like to be Prime Minister?

"I don't know. It is a very demanding job and takes a lot of stamina."

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Some science students in Calcutta University are putting their skill to unscientific use.

Topsy-Turvy Events Put More Furs in the Closet

By HELEN HENNESSY

NEW YORK — (NEA) — A whole new world is opening up to the man who longs for the big outdoors but is chained to a desk to earn his daily Martinis.

He might consider hunting or trapping as a career, and the money should still roll in. Because fur is flying all over the fashion scene.

A mink coat is no longer the unreachable star it once was. Women who have already achieved the mink-coat status are now buying sable or leopard. In fact, it's not even rare for a gal to own a wardrobe of furs these days.

An affluent society is not the sole factor responsible for this luxurious trend in outerwear. Ernest Graff, executive vice president of Ben Kahn Furs, creators of the former Jacqueline Kennedy's famous Samoli leopard, explained why at least one fur co t hangs in the closets of coeds, career girls and housewives today.

"First of all," Graff said, "furs are successfully competing with cloth simply because cloth is becoming so expensive. And furs have not gone up in price the way everything else has.

"Even more important is the fact that fur coats now have style — something they didn't have a few years ago."

The imagination of the furrier h a s widened since new techniques for the manipulation of skins make drapability possible with many furs that could never be used before for coats, capes or even ski wear. And many of these are not expensive.

"Persian lamb," Graff pointed out, "once was used only for matronly styled coats. A young girl wouldn't wear it even if she could afford it.

"Today it comes in luscious colors and is used for trim, young-looking coat designs, for suits, evening dresses — even jumpsuits."

At Ben Kahn's, the elegant fur collections are designed to campare in styling with the most au courant cloth garments. You will find such furry goodies as a cheetah jumper, imaginative mink fashions trimmed with other furs, a pale mink coat dress with back closing and jeweled belt, and minis to maxis in everything from ocelot to chinchilla.

"We sell a look and then decide on the kind of fur after that," the fur expert said. "We can do this now because we have so many different furs to work with."

Another boon for the fur business and bad news for all the little jaguars and sea otters (these latter are back on the scene after an absence of over 40 years because they were nearly all used up and had to be bred again) is the liberation of men from staid dressing. Mean's fur coats, spotted and solid, are moving off the racks with surpriing speed. Why not?

If shoulder-lenth hair and beads don't cause a shudder any more and beards and mustaches can be glued on or left off as easily as a gal's fake lashes, wearing a jaguar coat is really a conservative step toward sartorial splendor in this year of 1968.

But back to the ladies and the little furs that warm their hearts.

If the fact that women who already own mink are now turning to sable disturbs the gals who still look on mink as a status symbol, it needn't. Ernest Graff is in complete agreement with them.

MR. BEN KAHN models his own jaquar coat from his men's fur collection (L). From the Ben Kahn 1968-69 collection for women comes the Saga Pearl mink coat dress with cowl collar and jeweled belt (C) and the cheetah jumper with plunging neckline worn over black leotards (R).

Appeal Being Made by Local Chapter to Aid Patients

The Ulster County Chapter of the Association for Retarded Children has announced, that the annual drive to supply the friendless and forgotten patients at Wassaic State School with Christmas and Channukah gifts is now underway.

Wassaic is a state institution that cares for retarded patients at the school, more than half are "forgotten." These patients range in age from infants to very old.

An appeal for help from individuals and service groups is being made so that these patients may share some of the joy of Channukah and Christmas season.

Items requested are simple games, puzzles, books with colorful pictures, playing cards, dolls, toys, aprons, mittens, all types of jewelry, adornments, bobby pins, talcum powder, w a l l e t s , keycases with discarded keys, tobacco, pipes, tobacco pouches, belts and suspenders. These items need not be brand new, but should be in good condition.

Articles may be left at the A s s o c i a t i o n for Retarded Children office, 1 Van Buren Street, Kingston, (the Scholar Building). Further information may be obtained by contacting the office between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Annaul pickup stations will be located throughout Ulster and Greene Counties.

Perfect Gift for Grooming

It's nail-care a go-go anywhere with a vanity kit that is half nail-care center and half makeup mirrow with lights. The dual purpose of this alligator styled travel kit makes it a perfect gift for the girl who values anything that helps keep her beautifully groomed. The electric manicure emsemble has five professional attachments that make fast work with shapeless, straggly, rough nails. The full-faced, optically perfect mirror has recessed directional lighting that removes shadow or can be used to spotlight eyes or mouth for putting on false eyelashes or lip-lining. Mirror swivels to magnifying side at a touch. Tote also has a place to put cosmetics.

Helpful Hints

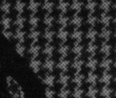

Men's fashion flaws include—tucking a formal bow tie under the collar points (show the tie. Don't hide it); mini-socks (anklets) with anything other than golfing or tennis togs; wearing anything other than black shoes with a dram semi-formal suit at night; coat collars that gap away from the neck.

Fabric textures will be bolder in spring and summer clothes. The Fashion Group reports new crackling, blistered surfaces are a common denominator to many. The new season also will be one in which extras count. Embellishments include beads, braid, embroidery, jewels, ribbons.

Ponytails Are Back in Running

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Ponytail hairdoes will flip their way to new popularity, predicts well-known Beverly Hills hairdresser, Neil Sloane.

The trend is under way on the West Coast and he has observed it in the East. But it will expand even further, he says, because hair is destined to be worn even longer.

Newer versions of the old mane favorites will be less messy and will not look as if they are growing out of the crown of the head, he points out. They will be well-groomed nape arrangements—sleekly straight or curled or braided.

The prospect of longer hair isn't thrilling hairdressers who are pushing for shorter styles, sometimes with compromises. Sloane has designed one all-over short, short hairdo with back hair long enough to be tied with a bow.

"California is setting styles after years of following New York's direction. I've observed the same casual attire being worn in discotheques and on streets here, but women would have considered it unthinkable a few years ago to wear pants on Fifth Avenue, even though they'd wear them in California. The new relaxed attitudes in clothes add up to a desire for more casual hairstyles."

Some women never wear the right hairstyle, no matter what, Sloane says. His fingers become scissors-happy when he watches television and sees actresses wearing hairdoes that make them look horse-faced. But hairdressers get in an assembly line rut, even though women are looking for something different, he says.

Sloane dresses the hair of many well-known show personalities including Carol Channing, Dinah Shore, Natalie Wood, Cyd Charisse and the wives of stars and directors.

He was in the east attending the intercoiffure show, one of the year's most important hairdressing events. He is not in favor of hair competitions as such, but he thinks it is important for hairdressers to observe the work of others. One new idea can set the thought processes working.

What he'd like to see is some sort of government-sponsored interest in hairdressing workshops, similar to those that are popular abroad. It would stimulate creativity, he says. He has thought of starting an Experimental School in Hairdressing for just that reason.

Doing the Right Thing

INFORMING IN-LAWS OF SECOND MARRIAGE

Dear Mrs. Post: My first husband was killed in the service a year ago, and he was an only child. I was, and still am, devoted to my in-laws and we see each other often. Now, I would like to know how and when I should tell them I am going to remarry. I also would like to know if they should be invited to my wedding, or if that would be too hard for them. And finally, should I introduce my fiance to them before the wedding?—Caroline

Dear Caroline: The tone of your letter indicates that your in-laws are as fond of you as you are of them and their first consideration will be your happiness. Although they are almost sure to feel a little upset at the idea of someone taking their son's place, after the first shock is over I know they will be delighted. Tell them soon, so that they do not hear the news from an outsider. At the same time ask them if you may bring your fiance to meet them and show them how much you care for their approval. If all goes well, as I'm sure it will, you may discuss with them whether or not they would like to come to your wedding. Personally, I think it would be difficult for them and for you, but if they indicate that they wish to be there, by all means invite them.

Dear Mrs. Post: I would like to know the right way of introducing two of three married couples to another group of people who perhaps arrive at a gathering at the same time. — A. Bickford

Dear Mrs. Bickford: If the group already there is very large, take the strangers up to those nearest the door and introduce them to two or three couples. You need not take them all around the room. If, however, there are only four or five people assembled, lead the strangers over — conversation will stop automatically — and looking toward each new couple in turn you say to the earlier arrivals, "I'd like you to meet Anne and Bill Jones, Fran and Dick Hall, and Sally and Jack Goldberg." Then indicating who is who by a nod or gesture, you say to the newcomers, "Mary and Bob St. John, Amy and Dan Smith." If they arrive at the same time, greet each couple and then introduce them all to each other.

Bride's Picture Alone

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it proper to have a boy's picture along with the girl's when an engagement is announced in the paper? My son just became engaged and the girl's mother wants to put both in the paper. I feel we would be the laughing stock of the town.—Mrs. E.W.

Dear Mrs. W.: You are right. Traditionally, only the girl's picture appears in the paper and it would cause considerable comment if her fiance's appeared, too.

Removing From the Right

Dear Mrs. Post: In removing soiled dinner plates and salad plates from the table, if one removes them "from the right" does it not mean reaching in front of the guest to the salad plate position?—Greta N.

Dear Mrs. N.: The rule is that "when convenient" plates are removed from the right. Since it is not convenient when there is a salad plate on the diner's left, both plates may be removed from that side.

End of an Era; 'Chick' Meehan Steps Down

JOHN MEEHAN SR.

By DENNIS R. CARO
(Freeman Sports Staff)

STONE RIDGE — When the Rondout High School football team takes the practice field for the first time next fall, John Meehan, Sr. will be just another fan.

After coaching the Golden Ganders throughout their entire history as an eleven man team, "Chick" is stepping down to devote more time to his duties as athletic director, duties that continue to grow with the rapid expansion of the Rondout District.

"Rondout is too big an operation for one man to run," Meehan said. "I'd like to continue as football coach, but too many of my athletic director's duties have been left hanging."

Meehan topped off his career as a football coach this year with his second consecutive Ulster County Atehletic League championship and the first playoff championship the League has ever had when the Ganders downed Pine Bush 20-13 last Saturday for their 19th straight game without a loss.

In his sixteen years as football coach, Meehan produced four other league championship squads, finishing in a three way tie with Onteora and New Paltz in 1960 and taking three straight crowns from 1954-56 when the UCAL played a six man game, and Rondout was still Kerhonkson Public School.

It hasn't all been roses, of course. Rondout went through an eight year drought, from 1958-65, when aside from the 2-0-2 1960 season the Ganders were 10-30 in league play. Five time during that spell they finished the UCAL season with only one league win.

But the dry spell ended in 1966, when the Ganders finished second to Highland with a 5-2 record, and they haven't looked back since.

The last two squads were the best the veteran coach has seen.

"It's difficult to distinguish between this year's team and last year's," Meehan said. "We were a little stronger in the middle of the line this year, but the 1967 squad was tougher at the ends.

"I'd have to say they were pretty even, and I've certainly never had a better squad than either of them."

Meehan's back-to-back best have also produced the two players he rates above all the others he has coached.

"Gordie Taylor (who led the 1967 Ganders to a 7-0-1 mark and set new records in both scoring and rushing) was definitely the best back I've ever had here," he said, "and Larry Baney is easily the outstanding lineman."

"Whenever we had to stop someone this year, Larry was the one who shot through and made the play."

Baney, a six-foot-one-inch, 195-pounder, is strong, he said, "and quick to diagnose what's going on." The burly tackle is also only a junior and will be an excellent nucleus for Meehan's as yet unnamed successor.

The outstanding quarterback, although he is hesitant to admit it, is probably his son, John Jr., who "had it rough playing under me. I almost wished he went somewhere else."

The last three years, and the 19-game streak that was marred only by a tie with Marlboro last year, give Meehan a 33-33-3 record against conference schools since 1957 when the district centralized and the UCAL went to eleven-man football.

"The last year we were Kerhonkson," Meehan said, "we only had 65 boys in the whole school, maybe 20 in the senior class. This year we had over 60 in the senior class alone. This district has just about quadrupled, and it looks like it's going to keep on growing at about the same rate."

Which is why he has to step down as football coach.

Meehan will, however, continue to coach the varsity basketball squad, at which he has had even more success than football. Rondout is defending UCAL champions in basketball, by virtue of a playoff with Onteora last year.

The 52 year old Meehan, who protests "I'm not too old to continue coaching, I feel great," was a standout in the New York State Professional football league in the 1940's, and also played 12 years of pro basketball, finishing his career as a guard with the Syracuse Nationals of the National Basketball League.

"I've always loved football, he said. Coaching it is something I'm really going to miss.

And if the effort he has put into molding a winning tradition into Rondout football is any indication, the District is going to miss him as a coach even more.

Middletown-Maroon Could Decide DUSO

By DENNIS R. CARO
(Freeman Sports Staff)

"They're the finest bunch of boys I've ever had," Coach Frank Modica said about his Kingston High School football team. "They really give you an all out effort."

This Saturday, when the "Fighting Maroons" travel to Middletown to face what Modica termed "the best team we're going to play this year," he's going to need that effort.

The Middies, tied with Kingston for first place in the DUSO league by virtue of a 25-0 win over Newburgh, are 3-2 on the season and are coming off a 40-14 thumping at the hands of White Plains.

It was the type of loss that will only serve to make them tougher.

The name of the game has been defense for Middletown this year, despite the White Plains rout. Only three of the 12 Middie touchdowns have come on sustained drives. The rest have been set up by a rugged defensive line that averages close to 190 pounds and a speedy secondary.

Kingston's game has been just the reverse. An offensive juggernaut that has almost doubled the Middletown point production, and a defense that is at times prone to very serious mistakes.

While the Middies were being decimated, the Maroons were clobbering Our Lady of Lourdes 40-13 and coming up with three serious injuries.

John Berardi, a powerful two-way lineman, severely twisted his ankle on the soft Dietz Stadium infield and big Bobby Clausi pulled a thigh muscle kicking extra points in practice.

Joe Holland, an offensive end who is one of quarterback Mike Hoffman's best deep receiving threats also came up with an ankle injury in practice last week and is listed as a doubtful starter.

Of the three, Modica said, only Clausi figures to start, albeit heavily taped, and he probably will not be able to go at full speed.

The injuries mean Dale Whitman will most likely be moved to tackle and Paul Sealoff to end, leaving Fred Kachura as Hoffman's deep threat aside from the boys in the backfield.

Middletown's offense has been rated comparatively weak this year, based for the most part in a running game that features six backs of roughly equal caliber.

Senior quarterback Paul Hughes can throw the ball, but he is also the only threat as a receiver. Coach Dick Wolslayer has been going to reserve Gary Klingman more often as the season has progressed and spotting the six-foot-five-inch Hughes at offensive end, but Klingman's passing has proved inconsistent.

The Maroon defense has had its toughest battles when a running game is mixed with short passes to the outside, however, and this is what they figure to be up against.

The Middies face a similar problem in that Kingston's offensive strength is their biggest weakness. White Plains ran Middletown ragged with the end run and the reverse last week, and speedsters like Marshall Byrd and Eddie Edams could have a field day.

And when the Maroon mix the sweep with Hoffman's strong aerial game, the quick but relatively inexperienced Middletown secondary is going to really have to be on its collective toes.

Both squads figure to be up for this game like they've never been up for another. The winner clinches at least a tie for the DUSO title and is an odds-on bet to go all the way.

The non-league games last week are just numbers in the record book now, they don't mean a thing. Kingston took a 40-6 shellacking from Johnstown before upending Port Jervis in the first DUSO set, and Newburgh hadn't lost a game, before facing Middletown, nor have the Goldbacks lost one since.

Both the Middies and Maroons are faced with pre-game practice problems this week, staying indoors yesterday and hoping to have their respective fields plowed off by this afternoon. The Kingston squad reported for practice even though inclement weather had forced the school to close yesterday morning.

West Point in NCAA Soccer Tournament

WEST POINT — The United States Military Academy soccer team was named to compete in the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament for the sixth straight year, Tuesday, joining State University College at Brockport, Hartwick and Hofstra in the New York delegation.

The 8-2 Black Knights of the Hudson, who dropped semi-final matches in 1963-66 and a first round match last year, will face Harvard at Cambridge, Mass. Monday, while Hofstra is meeting Fairleigh Dickinson and Brockport and Hartwich are taking the day off.

The second round pairings, scheduled for Nov. 21-23, will match Brockport against the Army-Harvard winner, Hartwick against Trinity College and the Hoftra-Fairleigh Dickinson winner against Brown University.

Brockport, with an 11-0-0 record, was the unanimous choice for New York's number one team, closing out its season by holding that spot for the last three weeks. Army was ranked second, Hartwick third and Hofsta fourth, by the College Soccer Coaches' Board.

Fairleigh is the number two team in the New Jersey, Pennsylvania Delaware region, Harvard is third ranked in New England and Brown is that region's number one squad.

Harvard with only a 5-3-1 record on the season, goes into Monday's contest a decided underdog despite its home field advantage. The Black Knights have been playing high scoring soccer this year, led by inside right Matt Fleumer and inside left Pete Cramblett, each with an even dozen goals.

Boros-Trevino In World Cup

By CHARLES W. BELL

ROME (UPI)—Julius Boros has a score to settle in the World Cup golf tournament and to help him do it, the 48-year-old father of seven has imported a private cheering section.

Twenty-five fans and friends flew into Rome to back Boros in his efforts to erase a 15-year-old performance he doesn't brag about.

"I only played in one World Cup tournament," the Mid Pines, N.C., pro said. "That was the first one in 1953. And I helped the United States finish fifth."

It was the lowest finish of all time for the Americans in the annual two-man competition which opens for the 16th time Thursday at the lush par-72 Olgiata golf course outside Rome.

Boros, the reigning PGA champion, and Lee Trevino, 28, of El Paso, Tex., are favored to give the United States its 10th World Cup win.

But for Boros, it's a personal thing.

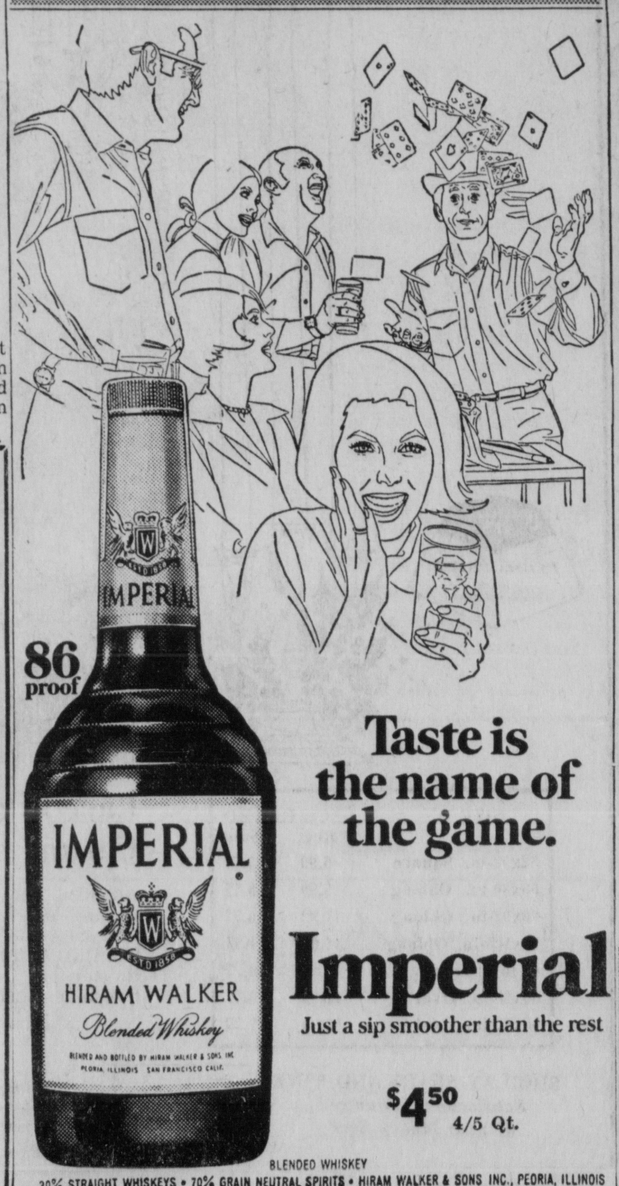

"I shot an 80 and a 70 the first time," he said. "I'm glad it was only two rounds then. The way I was shooting, my score would have looked like a telephone number."

He planned to warm up today with a sub-par round—"and if it isn't sub-par I'll feel bad"—during a pro-am tournament that pairs him with Juan Trippe, an ardent amateur and president of Pan American Airlines.

The countdown is on and come Monday—D-Day—in the hunter's lexicon is the opening day of the 1968 big game season in the area. But the weather man has moved in to radically alter the best laid plans of the deer-slayers.

Yesterday's heavy snowfall piled on a substantial base already stacked in the Adirondacks and the higher elevations of the Catskills means just one thing—the deer will not be moving. They will be herding near the range tops—more elusive than ever.

But the fast shuffle from the elements is not expected to diminish the enthusiasm of the hunters who are a hardy breed indeed. They know that all prominent deer areas have some excellent herds. On a recent mountain survey, we saw some really good sized deer. This despite the fact that the prime food sources—beechnuts and acorns—are not too plentiful in the higher areas.

To those riding Route 28, we urge caution. Almost daily deer are being hit on this high speed highway and from what we've seen many of these deer could have been avoided with some common sense driving.

Hunters are reminded that sunrise for opening day is 6:48 and sunset at 4:42. Most of the boys spent a busy weekend toting in their food to camp and stocking up their fuel supply.

One last reminder—be sure before you shoot and always remember you're not the only one in the woods. We need all the readers we can get.

AN ENTIRELY NEW CONCEPT in raising wild trout is an experiment in the planning stages by the Catskill Chapter of Trout Unlimited. At present, remote mountain streams are being surveyed and plans call for the hatching of these trout in small Vibert boxes. These containers have been purchased by the local chapter and are imported from France.

The eggs, imported from Pennsylvania and distributed by a commercial hatchery in Sullivan County, were purchased by individual club members.

One thousand of these tiny eggs are placed in the Vibert boxes to be planted in the headwaters of remote streams. The boxes are covered with small stones and left to hatch. Most all trout in foreign countries are raised this way and reports from neighboring Pennsylvania indicates success with this experiment in that state. If the venture proves successful in this area, other hatchings will be forthcoming.

THE BIZARRE, SENSELESS homicide of young Robert Gallo of East Kingston has everyone in the hunting fraternity up in arms and rightfully so. We only hope that every member club of the county federation will aid in swelling the reward offered by his fellow club members in the East Kingston Rod and Gun Club. Their efforts and those of other civic groups are to be commended. Everyone hopes that the intensive efforts of enforcement officials working on the case will culminate in a solution of the mystery.

May we take this opportunity to express condolences to Bob's family and friends.

SOME SHORT TAKES:

Bill Messing unfolding a story about his young nephew, Tom Heneberry, at Mickey's recently. Seems young Tom made his first rabbit kill with his 20-guage shotgun. Now the question is—was the rabbit running or sitting?

Yogi Izgro, popular dynamo of the Glasco Gun Club, will be eating off the mantlepiece and also miss deer hunting at Spruceton after a fall from the roof on his new Saugerties home. His severe spinal injury also will keep him incognito for some time.

A total of 839 deer kills were recorded at upstate checking stations in the first two weekends of the Adirondack season, compared to 746 last year. Here the deer are checked for age, weight, sex and state of nutrition. Many of the deer had small antlers and there were the usual party permit deer.

Met Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith recently at Marge and Sevi Peloubet's in Phoenicia and at a hale and hearty 70-plus, Mr. Smith still can spin tales of the good old days on the Esopus and all those big rack deer. After a short sojurn in the Catskills, they will return to Florida where they operate a gift shop.

Wayne Meyer spent the weekend with his dad at his camp near Newcombe in the Adirondacks and reports 24 inches of snow and the deer well hidden.

OLD RIP SEZ: Better get your cut from those Christmas Club checks for your sporting equipment, before the lady of the house goes on her annual shopping spree.

San Diego Is Ready For Biggies

NEW YORK (UPI)—San Diego State, seeking its third consecutive small college championship, could be ready for the big time now.

That's the opinion expressed by observers of the Aztecs' unbelievable 68-7 trouncing of Southern Mississippi Saturday night.

Leading only 13-7 at the half, the Aztecs erupted for 55 points in the second half to completely demoralize the visiting southerners, who entered the game with a 3-4 mark in major college competition.

The immense proportion of the San Diego State victory is best shown in a pair of Southern Mississippi losses, one a 17-14 decision to Alabama and another 21-13 to Mississippi, both Southeastern Conference powers.

The victory helped the Aztecs maintain their leadership in the small college ratings as Don Coryell's powerhouse received 28 first place votes and 330 points from the 35-member United Press International Board of Coaches.

North Dakota State, which ended with a 9-0 mark, captured second easily while Tampa moved into the third spot vacated by Chattanooga, which lost to Mississippi and dipped to fifth. New Mexico Highlands, which also finished with a 9-0 mark, moved up to fourth.

Eastern Kentucky held sixth and Texas A&I seventh while Weber State took eighth, Morgan State moved up to ninth and Western Kentucky caputred 10th.

Adams State was 11th, followed by Willamette, Humboldt State and North Carolina State, with a pair of upsets in its last two outings, in the next three places, each a point apart.

NEW YORK (UPI) The United Press International top 20 small college football teams with first place votes and won-lost-tied records in parentheses. (eighth week).

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—The Professional Golfers Association installed 1954 PGA golf champion Chick Harbert of Miami Tuesday night as its 37th Hall of Fame member.

The presentation was made by president Max Elbins of Washington, D. C., at the annual president's banquet at the Palm Beach Towers.

The PGA announced the selection of four new members to its 14-member executive committee. They were Dugan Aycock, Lexington, N. C., Jim Warga, Forsgate, N. J., John Boda, Andover, Mass., and Howard Morrette, Cleveland, Ohio.

The Boxing Beat

Liston and Chuvalo Heavyweight Winners

By the Associated Press

Heavyweights held the boxing spotlight on Tuesday, as three pretenders to the throne scored impressive victories and an Olympic boxing hero deciared his intentions of turning professional.

Sonny Liston, bidding to regain the heavyweight crown he once wore, chased Roger Rischer for two rounds at Pittsburgh then knocked him out at 2:23 of the third round.

The end of the nationally televised bout came when Liston caught Rischer against the neutral ropes and bombed him with left hooks and a straight right. Liston dropped Rischer for an eight count with a right hand uppercut in the first round. The crowd of 4,123 hooted and whistled through the short lived fight.

In Toronto, rugged George Chuvalo moved a shot closer to another shot at the world heavyweight crown with a seventh round technical knockout over Italy's Dante Cane at Maple Leaf Gardens before about 10,000 fans.

Cane's handlers threw a towel into the ring after he had been sent through the ropes by a straight right and then subjected to a flurry of lefts and rights when he was able to get back on his feet.

Chuvalo, who is scheduled to fight Buster Mathis at Madison Square Garden Dec. 1, was in command all the way.

Thad Spencer of San Francisco was stopped in the sixth round in London, England, by Britain's Billy Walker. Spencer, once a contender for the world title, said later he intended to "take a year off."

Elsewhere on the boxing beat, George Foreman, winner of the heavyweight championship in the recent Olympics, said Tuesday he probably would turn professional "within a year."

Foreman, 19, a 6-foot 3½ inches sports instructor in California, made t he comment during a special ceremony and luncheon in his honor at Pleasanton, Calif.

Weather Slows Harness Racing But Only Little

Snow and rain slowed harness racers Tuesday night at Roosevelt Raceway and Batavia Downs, and halted the program at Saratoga Raceway.

Dream Pick captured the $4,000 pacing feature at rain-swept Roosevelt by three-quarters of a length over Julie Hanover N. Hopalong was third in the mile, timed in 2:06 3-5. A win ticket returned $28.20.

Royal Rock braved a heavy snowstorm at Batavia to win the $1,200 pace in the slow time of 2:21 1-5. Wally Spencer and Billy Grayson followed in the mile. The win was worth $7.80.

Racing at Saratoga was scheduled to resume tonight.

Two Get Boost In NBA Play

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baltimore's first-place hopes got a jolt, and Cincinnati's a boost ... all because Oscar Robertson gave up being a playmaker for about three minutes.

Robertson picked the last three minutes of the game to concentrate on scoring Tuesday night and drilled in six points to choke off a Bullet rally and guide the Royals to a 126-115 National Basketball Association victory.

The triumph — the Royals' sixth in a row—snapped Baltimores six-game winning streak and dropped the Bullets to third in the Eastern Division, a half game back of Cincinnati and .010 percentage points behind idle second-place Boston.

In other games, Chicago turned back San Diego 115-108, Milwaukee coasted past Seattle 127-114 and San Franciso defeated Atlanta 123-108.

In the two American Basketball Association games scheduled Los Angeles whipped Minnesota 123-116 in overtime and Denver defeated Oakland 134-127.

Robertson, who also had 18 assists, pumped in the six of his 29 points after the Bullets had forged from a 16-point deficit to a 107-106 lead with 3:44 left.

After that bit of work spirited the Royals to a 112-109 lead with 1:53 left, Adrian Smith put it out of doubt with 10 straight points —eight on free throws as Baltimore tried to gain possession.

Tom Van Arsdale led Cincinnati with 32 points and Jerry Lucas contributed 26 in addition to grabbing 22 rebounds. Ray Scott topped the Bullets with 27.

Chicago survived a 40-point spree by rookie Elvin Hayes to make San Diego its sixth victim in 15 games.

The Bulls, paced by Clem Haskins' 29 points, led by as much as 18 points in the first half before the Rockets trimmed it to 87-84 early in the last quarter.

However, Haskins and Bob Boozer teamed for a rally that produced a 100-90 lead with four minutes left.

Milwaukee almost blew a 21-point lead before spurting away to dump the SuperSonics.

The Bucks were in front 82-61 in the third quarter when Len Wilkens and Bob Rule, who each scored 1 7in the last half, fired a splurge that narrowed the gap to 109-104.

However, four points by Guy Rodgers and a pair of free throws by Bob Weiss put Milwaukee back in control, 115-104.

Dave Gambee scored 29 for the Bucks. Rule had 28 and Wilkens 26 for Seattle.

San Francisco, in scoring 123 points against Atlanta, compiled its highest point output of the season while gaining its fourth victory in five home games.

Orange CCC and Siena College in YMCA Road Race

Entries have been received from Siena College and Orange County Community College for the annual Kingston YMCA Road Race which will be run Saturday at 11 a.m.

Other Hudson Valley area schools which have entered teams include Rhinebeck Country Day School, Newburgh Mission Seminary, Onteora Central High, Our Lady of Lourdes, Middletown High, St. Joseph's School of Callicoon and Ellenville High.

Several post entries also are expected for the three and six-mile runs. Both events are open to all athletes and invitations have been sent to all high schools, clubs and colleges in the Hudson Valley area.

The starting line will be at the old Broadway post office opposite the YMCA on Grand street. The race will be run regardless of weather conditions.

Craig Hubbell of Onteora took the five mile run in 26:12 in a driving rainstorm last year. The ten miler went to Jim Dever of Oneonta Track Club in 57:34.

The trophy list has been increased this year to give awards to the first three runners to finish each race. A team trophy is also awarded in each division. In addition, the best performance by a local runner will be rewarded with a special trophy.

The actual race route will be up Grand street and Shufeld avenue and then a loop around Wood, left on East Chester, left on Meade, and left down Clifton avenue. This loop will be covered several times until the runners have covered the required distances with the finish line at the YMCA.

The races are sponsored by the YMCA, a member of the Community Chest of Ulster County, under the direction of its physical education committee.

The YMCA, in conjunction with other Y's in the nation, is interested in promoting running for health and enjoyment and the annual road races are one expression of this interest in physical education.

Cards' Ace Wins MVP

Gibson and McLain Prove It Was Year of the Arm

NEW YORK (AP) Bob Gibson, the St. Louis Cardinals' brilliant right-hander, was named the National League's Most Valuable Player today, capping an unprecedented pitchers' sweep of baseball's most coveted prizes.

Gibson, a 22-game winner whose 1.12 earned run average was the lowest in league history, beat out batting champ Pete Rose of Cincinnati in a relatively close contest for MVP honors after capturing the NL Cy Young Award as the unanimous choice of the voting members of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Detroit ace Denny McLain took the American League MVP and Cy Young awards.

In Matsuyama, Japan, where the Cardinals were scheduled to play a local team on their exhibition tour, Gibson said:

"It's great. It's just great, because pitchers don't usually win MVP awards. I've got to thank everyone on the team. The whole team helped me have a good year."

Gibson, who pitched 13 shutouts in leading the Cardinals to their second consecutive pennant, succeeds teammate Orlando Cepeda as the NL MVP.

Cepeda, the only unanimous selection for MVP in National League history, did not receive a single vote this year.

Gibson, 33, a strapping 6-foot-2 veteran of nine seasons with the Cardinals, is the ninth pitcher-MVP since the inception of the award in 1931. Until this year, only Don Newcombe, in 1956, and Sandy Koufax, in 1963, had won both the Cy Young—for pitchers only—and MVP awards.

In the Cy Young voting, Gibson received all 20 first places from the BBWA panel two writers from each city. He got 14 firsts in the MVP balloting, Rose picking up the other six, and outpointed the hustling Cincinnati outfielder 242-205.

The writers voted for 10 places, with a first worth 14 points, a second, 9 points, a third, 8, and on down to 1 point for 10th.

Rose, who nipped Pittsburgh's Matty Alou for the batting title, .335 to .332, by going 7-for-15 in his last three games, was no lower than fourth on all 20 ballots.

Willie McCovey, San Francisco's slugging first baseman, finished third with 135 points. Curt Flood, the Cardinals' dandy center fielder, was fourth with 116 and Juan Marichal, the Giants' pitching star, was fifth with 93. Gibson, Rose, McCovey and Marichal were the only players among 26 receiving votes who were named on every ballot.

THE MAJORITY OF TIMES, THE FLY--RANGING IN SIZE FROM 2/0 TO 6 OR 8--SHOULD BE FISHED DEEP, WET FLY FASHION. THE EXCEPTION--DURING WINTER, IS WHEN THE AIR TEMPERATURE IS NOTICEABLY WARMER THAN THE WATER. ON SUCH "BALMY" DAYS, USE A GREASED FLY LINE AND LARGE PALMER-TIED DRY FLY. A "WOOLLY WORM" WET FLY--ALTERNATED WITH LOCAL FAVORITES--OFTEN WORKS WELL WHEN FISHED DEEP AND SLOWLY.

Health for All

Modern TB control methods in the U. S. have dramatically decreased the rate at which the disease attacks young children. Once they were among its most frequent victims. Today the case rate in the 5-14 year age group is the nation's lowest.

To keep it that way, doctors advise a course which, if followed, is bound to hold the TB rate in children on a pleasantly downward curve.

To begin with, a tuberculin test for tuberculosis is recommended for every infant before reaching the age of one. If the test is positive, a chest X-ray and laboratory tests should also be done to determine how far the infection has progressed. The doctor can then prescribe the drug treatment which will stop the infection and the disease.

If the tuberculin test is negative, it should be repeated at every annual medical checkup as a matter of routine.

Children usually acquire TB infection from adults; therefore immediate tuberculin testing of the parents and other adult associates, as well as other children in the family, is recommended wherever a child has reacted positively to a tuberculin test. If the test is positive, a chest X-ray, and laboratory tests should follow immediately.

All persons who regularly come in close contact with children, such as school personnel, baby sitters and child nurses, should be examined for tuberculosis annually. As a recent report of the National Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association pointed out, "If the cycle of transmission from older generations to newer could be ended, the problem of tuberculosis control would in large measure be solved." That is one of the chief goals of your Christmas Seal association.

Dems to Meet

The next regular meeting of the Town of Rosendale Democratic Club Inc., will be held on Monday, Nov. 18 at 8 p. m. at the Community Building Maple Hill. Refreshments will be served after the closing of the meeting by Mrs. Sally VanLoan of Bloomington. All members may attend.

Postpone Game

Because of weather conditions, the Ulster Duplicate Bridge Club will not hold its scheduled game this evening, a spokesman said today. A schedule of future games will be announced at a future date.

BACK TO STATES — Problem-plagued F-111 fighter-bombers, which had been expected to deliver key punches against Communist targets in North Vietnam, will return to the United States within two weeks, a U. S. Air Force spokesman said. A five-plane detachment of the swing wing jets, stationed at Lakhli Air Base in Thailand flew only 50 combat missions in Southeast Asia while testing their capability of delivering high speed, low altitude attacks in any weather. Ther combat efficiency is still in question. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

A Peace Corps in Reverse— San Salvador Boys to U.S.

SAN SALVADOR — Fifty one boys, ages 7 to 17, from San Salvador, El Salvador, Central America, have a plan, a project, a dream: to become ambassadors of good will, friendship and peace to the United States, as a Peace Corps counterpart, a Peace Corps in reverse.

The 51 boys are members of the Don Bosco Orchestra of San Salvador. The orchestra had the distinction of entertaining President Johnson and the five Presidents of the five Central America countries when they met in San Salvador last July. The six heads of government were definitely impressed by the young musicians' talents. The orchestra has already performed in all the Central American countries and Panama.' President Johnson told the boys that he would be very happy if the orchestra some day could visit the United States.

The encouragement received by the boys from their very successful performance, gave the boys the idea that perhaps they had something to offer and something to share with the people of the United States: musical talent, entertainment, culture, cheerfulness, friendship.

"We Americans attempt to make friends, improve our relations, promote the cause of international peace with the surplus product of our fabulously generous agriculture, through various relief programs, within the broad system of the Alliance for Progress and the Peace Corps."

"Nations do not enjoy being always and exculsively recipients of relief. They, as do individuals, desire to be able to reciprocate, cooperate and, finally, achieve economic and cultural independence, stability and prosperity," it was noted.

The boys of the Don Bosco Orchestra are familiar with United States relief programs through Catholic Relief Services-USCC, CARE and with the work of the Peace Corps volunteers. The boys sensed that, at their conference in San Salvador, the six participating Presidents were concerned about improving relations and stregthening ties of friendship between the people of Latin America and the people of the United States. A desire was born: to visit the Unites States in a people-to-people effort, making their contribution towards international brotherhood and peace. If Peace Corps boys and girls can go to Latin America from the United States, to live, work and be friendly with the people of those countries, there is no reason, why boys from El Salvador could not reciprocate and visit the United States.

During December, vacation time for El Salvador school children, the Don Bosco Orchestra, now know as the Friendship Orchestra, will be visiting various communities in the United States, The length of the boys' visit will depend on the degree of interest and support Americans will display in this laudable and noble program.

The orchestra will accept invitations to perform, free of charge. Only actual cost of transportation and lodging will be charged. Applications will be considered if directed to Friendship Orchestra, Good Will Tour to America, 853 Third Avenue, Elizabeth, N.J. 07202

Col. Fidel Sanchez Hernandez, president of El Salvador, will provide the Friendship Orchestra with transportation — by plane — to the United States.

Artillery, Tanks Wage Duel Near Jordan

TEL AVIV (AP) — An artillery and tank duel raged across the Jordan River near the Abdullah Bridge today, three miles north of the Dead Sea. One Jordanian soldier was reported killed.

It was the first heavy fighting in the arid Dead Sea area since last August, when fighting broke out in the wake of an Israeli air raid on Arab guerrilla bases in the Jordan Valley.

An Israeli army spokesman claimed a Jordanian tank and artillery gunners opened up on Israeli positions after several bursts of light arms fire from the Jordanian side of the river. The battle was still going on 80 minutes later, he said.

A Jordanian spokesmsan claimed Israeli soldiers started the shooting with machine-gun fire. He said one Jordanian soldier was killed in the clash and the Israeli forces were believed to have suffered casualties. But the Israelis did not report any casualties.

The Jordanian spokesman also said two Jordanian soldiers were killed during the night when a band of Israeli soldiers tried to invade the east bank of the Jordan River in the Adasia area. He claimed the Israeli force was smashed in a 35-minute battle but said nothing about Israeli casualties.

Charged in Death

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A 20-year-old Rochester man who allegedly beat 4-year-old Robert Carey in the apartment the man shared with Robert's mother was charged with second-degree manslaughter Tuesday, a day after the boy died.

Police said Marion F. Blake struck the boy and threw him on the floor Saturday when the boy would not stop crying.

Mrs. Pauline Carey said her son was ill Sunday and Monday. She put the boy in bed Monday morning, she said, and went to St. Mary's Hospital to visit her daughter, 3-year-old Tanya, who has been hospitalized since Sept. 12 suffering from a brain hemorrhage.

County Worker Burned on Legs In Freak Mishap

Wilfred Palen, 51, of Hurley, suffered burns of the legs Tuesday in an unusual accident that occurred while he was operating a county highway department truck on the south side of the Ashokan Reservoir.

Palen was taken to Kingston Hospital by Doctors Ambulance and was released after treatment.

According to Palen, he was operating the truck and a helper, Joseph Scully was at the rear of the vehicle checking the worm on a sander that wasn't working properly. Suddenly, Palen said, the hydraulic line broke and hot oil spurted into the cab of the truck, covering truck driver's legs.

Some of the oil was ignited as it came in contact with the hot muffler. Palen and Scully extinguished the fire in the truck.

"In the excitement that followed the fire in the cab of the truck," Palen said," I didn't realize I was burned, but later I noticed the burns and an ambulance was summoned."

Dear Abby

Her Decision; Stay Out

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

[© 1968 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I were married three months ago. In seven more months she is going to have a baby. I told my wife I want very much to be in the room with her when she gives birth, but she says she doesn't want me in there and I should go by the custom and walk the floor by myself. I have the doctor's permission if my wife doesn't object. The other reason she gives for not wanting me to watch her give birth is that she doesn't think it's right for me to see her nude in front of another person.

Abby, I would give my right arm to witness the birth of our first child. Is my wife right or wrong to deny me this privilege?

WANTS TO WATCH

DEAR WANTS: Keep your right arm. It's your wife's body, her performance, and her decision. Stay out.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I finally accepted a date with a real jerk. I only did it because he had asked me a dozen times and I kept saying I was busy, then he asked ME to set a date when I wasn't busy. So I was stuck, right? Now he's pestering me again, and giving me the same routine. How can I discourage this drip without coming right out and insulting him? When we dance he holds me too close, sings in my ear, and pants like a dying bull. When he holds my hand, my flesh crawls.

ROSITA

DEAR ROSITA: Tell him you like him "as a friend," and don't think he ought to waste his time and money on a girl who thinks of him as a "brother." This should cool off the most amorous amigo.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I were recently divorced. She was given custody of our teen-aged daughter and she also got our three bedroom home.

My problem is that she intends to rent the spare bedroom out. This is all right with me as long as she rents it to a woman! With just the teen-age daughter and my wife alone in the house I think renting to a man would be risky, don't you agree? Besides, it would be real easy for her to move a man friend in (rent-free) without having it look bad.

How can I prevent her from renting to a man?

NAMELESS

* * *

DEAR NAMELESS: Warn her about the risk of renting to a man, altho I'm sure it's already occurred to her. She can either accept your suggestion or reject it, but she may do as she pleases. As for her moving another man in (rent-free), the above answer also applies here.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Please print this for Bertie, whose husband lives 15 minutes from work, doesn't have to be there until 8 a. m., but rushes out of the house at 5 a. m. every morning. (He says he just likes to "ride around.")

My husband has been rushing out of the house from 2 to 4 o'clock every morning for 17 years. He also says he likes to "ride around." I have no reason to doubt him, but I remind him every once in a while to please be careful as he may come home with a load of buckshot in his behind.

Opening lead—♣ A

An "asking bid" is one that requests your partner to reveal his exact holding in some specific suit. They were first thought of by Ely Culbertson in the early '30s. The game was not ready for them at that time and Ely abandoned this particular brain child.

As bidding methods have improved over the years experts have continued to study these bids. A few actually use them, but for the most part experts have not got around to them as yet.

Today's hand illustrates a real asking bid situation. North responds with two hearts to his partner's opening diamond bid and is surprised to hear a two-spade response. After checking his hearing, he goes into a brown study to find out what to do from then on. Obviously the only card he is interested in is the ace of clubs. How can he ask about it?

When this hand was actually dealt in a friendly International Match Point match between some of America's best young players, each North tried to solve his problem by the use of Blackwood only to elicit a five-diamond response to show one ace. After that each one decided that it was far more likely he would find his partner's ace would be in diamonds than in clubs, and settled for the cinch small slam.

They were correct in their guesses but not satisfied with their results and have decided that if they ever hold this hand again, a jump from two spades to five clubs will be a straight asking bid in clubs. It seems reasonable but we hope that they remember it when they pick up a similar hand five or 10 years from now.

The young ski student, the cold hibernal wind blowing across his face, was hoping that his outdoor class would soon end so that he could return to the warmth of the lodge.

A group of excited children, many of whom had spent their lives in the West Indies, were told about the hibernal weather that existed in many countries.

The ordinary head cold, an illness quite common during the hibernal season, is usually a miserable experience for the patient.

Jack Benny Discusses Show

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mr. Benny was indisposed. Old blue-eyes had picked up the grippe during an engagement in Las Vegas and sounded more like Rochester than Jack Benny.

Still, he was able to receive a visitor at his penthouse apartment and talk about his favorite subject, show business. The particular piece of show business that concerned him at the moment was his first television special of the season, "Jack Benny's Bag," which appears on NBC next Saturday night.

May Be Best

"You'll like it; it's great," he said with customary confidence. "It may be the best special I ever did—I would at least put it in the same class with the show I did with the chimps.

"I'll show you how up-to-date the show is—I'm doing a take-off of 'The Graduate.' The other shows steered clear of it because they were scared of the censors. But I've got Phyllis Diller playing the Anne Bancroft role. When I make love to her, I defy anyone to consider it sexy.

"I've got Lou Rawls and Eddie Fisher singing the Simon and Garfunkel song, 'Mrs. Robinson.' I never thought that Simon and Garfunkel would give me permission, but I asked them and they said I could use the song for nothing. Imagine—for nothing!

"Rochester is back, and I open the show with him. I shouldn't tip this off, but it's so great. After he talks to me on the telephone, he turns back to his poker game. And there's Walter Matthau dealing the cards, and Jack Lemmon fussing around the apartment!"

The special is sponsored by Texaco, for which Benny has appeared in spot commercials. He had some words to say about them:

"Some of my friends in the business say to me, 'Jack, why do you do commercials? It isn't like you.' My answer to them is, 'Frank Sinatra, who is the king of our business right now, in terms of what he can earn—Frank Sinatra goes on TV and sells beer. I mean, he makes the pitch himself. Well, if Frank Sinatra can do that, I can do some spots to sell gas.'

"But I wouldn't do it if only the commercials were involved. The thing is, Texaco also pays me a lot of money for my television specials. It's all tied in together, and it makes a lot of sense."

Another One Scheduled

Benny has another special to do this season and may sign for more next year. If so, he plans to eliminate other engagements. At 74, he continues to make a wide variety of appearances—night clubs, concert dates, etc.

"If I get the specials, I'll cut down, especially in Las Vegas," he said. "That's how I got this cold, working two shows a night. If they'll let me do one, then I'll go back. But it just gets to be boring, the two shows every night.

"But of course I'd never quit. What would I do? What would I have to talk about?"

Angry because his situation comedy was being dropped the TV producer decided to get revenge. In the final episode, he had the clean-cut hero sell dope to school kids, steal from a blind man and hide his kindly old grandmother's crutches. The show was such a success, the producer was rehired to produce it twice weekly as a night time soap opera.

Charges, Countercharges In Gotham School Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Talks aimed at ending the teachers' strike have broken off in a barrage of charges and countercharges, with most of the city's 1.1 million public school pupils now out of classes for six of the past eight weeks.

Mayor John V. Lindsay told a television audience Tuesday night that the 55,000-member United Federation of Teachers was guilty of "illegal reprisals" against officials of Brooklyn's Ocean Hill-Brownsville district.

UFT president Albert Shanker accused Lindsay of "deliberate distortion," adding: "When the mayor stops lying, we can sit down again."

"This strike could end tonight if the union showed a willingness to settle this by due process," Lindsay said.

Lindsay spoke on the WCBS-TV "6 O'clock Report" news show.

Shanker retorted that the mayor was trying "to deliberately deceive and fool" the people.

Lindsay said the charges of harassment of white union teachers in the predominantly Negro and Puerto Rican Ocean Hill district have not been documented, and that Shanker's presentation of the situation has been "shocking."

If anyone is found guilty of harrassment, Lindsay said, they will "not get away with it."

The union has stuck three times since the fall term opened Sept. 9 over refusal of Ocean Hill's governing board to allow about 80 teachers to teach because of their alleged opposition to school decentralization. The union denies this.

Ocean hill is one of three experimental districts in the city working on ultimate community control of education.

The city's 900 schools have been open only 12 school days since the walkouts began. Ocean Hill's eight schools have been open throughout the strikes.

The Ford Foundation, which has helped finance Ocean Hill decentralization, Tuesday termed "absolutely wrong" the union's "charges and innuendoes that the foundation is somehow influencing the course of the strike."

McGeorge Bundy, foundation president, called them "an attempt to shift responsibility for the strike" and "a mischievous distraction from the main business of reopening the schools."

Shanker asserts that the Foundation has exerted undue influence over the city's educational policies and that the organization should be considered a "political lobby" and lose its tax-exempt status.

Peace Plea Rejected

A proposal by Lindsay that a panel he appointed to make recommendations for ending the dispute has been turned down by the union.

A spokesman for the Council of Supervisory Associations, which is supporting the UFT, said Tuesday that the Board of Education also rejected the proposal.

The teachers' union has refused to go along with a plan by State Education Commissioner James E. Allen Jr. whereby a state trustee would temporarily run the Ocean Hill schools.

The union maintains that the district's refusal to allow its members to teach imperils job security and due process.

The JFT has demanded suspension of Ocean Hill's governing board and its unit administrator, Rhody McCoy; suspension of the district's principals, and the shutting down of Junior High School 271.

Czechs Threaten, Plead To Head Off the Marchers

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovakia's Communist leaders worked desperately today to keep young demonstrators off the streets while they wage a power struggle behind closed doors.

The leaders used a combination of threats and pleas in an attempt to head off students' and workers' plans for demonstrations against any more concessions to the Soviet occupiers.

Party chief Alexander Dubcek met with student leaders and warned them not to demonstrate next Sunday. He told them force would be used to stop them if they marched.

Dubcek's reform leadership faces a crucial power struggle with old guard Communists at a meeting beginning Thursday of the 160-member party central committee. The Dubcek group fears that more demonstration will result in Soviet intervention to return the old guard to power.

The 21-member party Presidium issued a statement condemning those who "organized" demonstrations Oct. 28 and Nov. 7 when youths chanted "Russians go home" and burned Soviet flags.

Student groups made a personal appeal to Dubcek to authorize a demonstration Sunday to commemorate students executed by the Nazis and express opposition to the "occupation of any country by foreign armies."

Informants said Dubcek refused authorization and that Deputy Premier Gustav Husak charged the earlier demonstrations were instigated by "counterrevolutionaries."

Such a counterrevolutionary" charge was used by the Soviet Union and four of its Warsaw Pact allies to justify the Aug. 20 invasion.

The student groups did not indicate immediately whether they would call off their demonstration.

There were reports the old guard Communists, who want to completely reverse Dubcek's post-January reforms, might even try to oust the party boss at Thursday's Central Committee session.

On the other side, there is a Central Committee group that wants no more retreat from the reform policy. Frantisek Vodslon, a member of Parliament who voted against the Oct. 18 Moscow agreement legalizing the idefinite stay of occupation troops, said: "There is bound to be a battle."
